CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—A fugacious air mass from the Hud- son region routed the heat from a wide midwestern and Lakes front today but drought maintained its sway on western sides.

From northwestern Illinois as fast as New York, living and drying conditions were more tol- erant as the cool air, aided by frequent thundershowers, got in welcome work.

Another day was chalked up to the record stay of higher than degree heat—its 13th—in sec- tions which the cooling breezes failed to penetrate, and fatalities continued to the torrid spell, though rate was reduced somewhat, to 3,848 for the period.

Early in the afternoon, Quincy, Illinois' western boundary, re- corded a 112-degree maximum. Ot- her spots were Indianapolis, 110; Clarendon, Texas, 110; Wel- lan, Kan., 111; Falls City, Neb., Kansas City, Mo., 102, and City, Okla., 108.

Italian Food Lines Blocked by Ethiopians

ETHIOPIA, July 15.—(AP)—Official circles expressed concern to- day over the safety of the Italian son in Addis Ababa with the dis- cuss the French railway from Ad- to Djibouti, French Somaliland, seen cut since July 6.

Persons close to the situation said arison had supplies for less than weeks when the last train reach- ed Addis Ababa nine days ago.

soon as the Italians repair in the line the Ethiopians enter other places, they said.

Man Weds, Becomes In-Law of In-Law

BERTRANDVILLE, La., July 15.—(AP)—When untangling scram- bled relationships take a whirl at this one:

Chris Miller, 23, married Ruth Meyer, 18, today and became his brother-in-law's son-in-law. His wife's father became her brother- in-law.

The bride is the daughter, by a former marriage, of Joseph Meyer. Her step-mother, Mrs. Christine Miller Meyer, is the bridegroom's sister.

It all began with the marriage of Mr. Meyer to Miss Miller, sister of today's bridegroom. Mr. Meyer al- ready had two daughters by his first wife, and one of these became to- day's bride.

The bride and groom, however, were not bothered by these twists and turns as they started their honeymoon.

HEAVY RAIN, WIND HIT NORTH GEORGIA

Damage Here Is High as Thunderstorm Sweeps Northwest Area of City.

A driving hail and rainstorm, its fury intensified by a 32-mile-an-hour wind, broke over Atlanta and en- veloped the city yesterday afternoon, causing considerable property damage and top- pling temperatures from the high nine- ties to the lower seventies.

Storms raged in other parts of the state also. A high wind blew down the hangar of the Smyrna airport, burying four planes under debris and badly damaging them. Severe hail and electrical storms were reported at Gainesville, and heavy rains fell twice in Athens.

The storm swept into Atlanta from the northwest, blowing before it clouds of dust from the streets and highways, alarming scores of residents who kept weather bureau men busy devising a tornado was advancing upon the city.

In Atlanta and surrounding sec- tions trees were uprooted; power lines were blown down; a residence was fired by lightning; a large sign was blown from a roof and a large plate glass window was blown out in the downtown section; hundreds of telephones were put out of order; au- tomobiles were pelted by heavy hail, and scores of homes were plunged into darkness.

The storm was heralded by men- acing dark clouds and came as a conference between WPA officials and agents of the Rural Re- settlement Administration, an all-day session at which plans were made for relief of distressed farmers in Geor- gia's 37 "emergency drought counties."

The Roswell Milling Company burn- ed to the ground with a loss estimated at $15,000 at about 10 o'clock last night when lightning struck the build- ing and set it on fire. No one was injured.

A severe electrical storm broke over Roswell at about the same time, put- ting out power in the area.

RUSSELL TARGET OF BITTER ATTACK FROM TALMADGE

Governor Turns Loose Vitriolic Condemnation of Opponent's Record in Speech at Cartersville.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 15.— With the campaign less than two weeks old, bitterness came into Geor- gia's senatorial battle today when Governor Talmadge, making the se- cond speech of his campaign, turned loose a scathing attack on Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., bombarding the senator's public record and ac- cusing him of using "yellow dog words" in the first of his bids for re-election.

Talmadge coupled his attacks on Russell with renewed criticism of the New Deal and its administration. With Secretary of Agriculture Wallace bear- ing the brunt of these attacks, the Governor, however, was careful to re- frain from making any attacks on President Roosevelt himself. He chose, rather, to flay the Roosevelt policies and those who are helping the Presi- dent to carry them into effect.

"Send me to the senate and if Wal- lace doesn't shut up about changing the form of government in the United States, I'll send him back to Iowa," the Governor said, waving his arm to the crowd.

Centers Fire on Russell.

He concentrated his attack on Russell, whom he succeeded as governor.
He charged Russell with enactment of an appropriations act adding $3, 500,000 to the state debt; opposing free school books; supporting the AAA, NRA, and opposing the soldiers' bonus.

"I am not seeking a seat in the United States Senate on the weakness of my opponent," Talmadge said, "they have called me a traitor to the Presi- dent, a Benedict Arnold—those are yellow dog words."

"How my opponent wishes I was running for the senate against the President of the United States! I want to go to the senate to pro- tect the President against Wallace, Tugwell, Frankfurter, Lickes, et al and all the hoodlums."

The Governor appealed for con- tinued in Page 4, Column 1.

RUSSELL REPLIES TO GOV. TALMADGE

Thrusts Said "Figment of Distressed Imagina- tion," by Junior Senator.

Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., Georgia candidate for re-election to the United States senate, who was hotly attacked by Governor Talmadge today at Cartersville, replied to the attack in a statement last night to The Constitution, declaring the Gov- ernor's thrusts were "figments of dis- tressed imagination."

The Governor's accusations against Senator Russell's record in congress were branded as "false" by the sena- tor, who declared Talmadge has "lost his temper" and evidently has become desperate at the "rising tide of senti- ment" that will retire him to private life in September.

If the Governor were to "achieve the impossible," Russell said, and carry out his platform at McRae, he would take away the farmers' hand-picked men from the post office, disband the army and the navy.

Cobb Says: Today's Judgments Biased

By IRVIN S. COBB. (Copyright, 1936, by South American News- paper Alliance, Inc.)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 15.—The future has a rotten trick of musing up the judgments of the present. What a pity it is that we can't wear our hind-sights in front.

When I read where some ponder- ous performing pachyderm of the literary elephant quadrille says, "this story will live forever," I get to thinking about a time-worn copy of a metropolitan newspaper I saw once, a paper that was printed on November 20, 1893.

$3,000,000 Plant Is Planned on Peachtree Street by Montgomery Ward

Above is shown a tentative drawing by architects of the new Montgomery Ward plant, which is to be erected on Peachtree street, diagonally across from the Peachtree station, if a zoning petition is approved at a meeting of the city zoning commission. It is estimated that the plant and the property on which it is to be built will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. Present plans call for a three-story building fronting on Peachtree street, with a four-story building at the rear, extending along the Southern railway right-of-way.

KEY, WELLS ENTER LISTS FOR MAYOR

22 Qualify on First Day; Executive's Campaign Opened at Dinner Rally.

Mayor Key last night climaxed his qualification and that of James Wells, former councilman, for the mayoral nomination in the September 2 primary by inaugurating his cam- paign at a dinner at the Ansley hotel.

The two former warm personal friends and political allies were defi- nitely branded as opponents as they along with 22 others qualified for the 38 city officers for which nominations will be made, paid their entrance fees and qualified with L. Glenn Dewberry, acting secretary of the city democratic executive committee.

About 75 persons, representing a cross section of metropolitan Atlanta, attended the dinner at which Key launched his drive for a fifth term as the city's chief executive.

Couch Presides.

Hugh C. Couch, assistant to the vice president of the Southern Railway, presided and acted as toastmaster, and half a score of leading Atlantans were among those who praised Key's regime, lauded his "progressive and economical administration" and called on the local electorate to return him for another three-year term.

The mayor predicated his claim for renomination on his record in preserv- ing the credit of the city; his staunch stand for economy; the ward reduc- tion plan, which goes into effect the first of January, the fact that pay rolls have been met despite reduced city revenues; prosecution of large public improvements through co-opera- tion with federal authorities, pointing specifically to the sanitary sewer sys- tem and the erection of Techwood and University housing projects; legaliza- tion of Sunday motion pictures and Sunday baseball, and other items, which he enumerated as administration achievements.

Although there are now 26 qualified candidates for the primary, more than half of the positions are yet unchal- lenged, and it was expected that more than 60 candidates will be in the field by the time entries close at noon Saturday, August 1.

The Key qualification came as a surprise to the mayor and to political observers, who had not anticipated that the entrance fee would be paid until after the dinner honoring the executive last night.

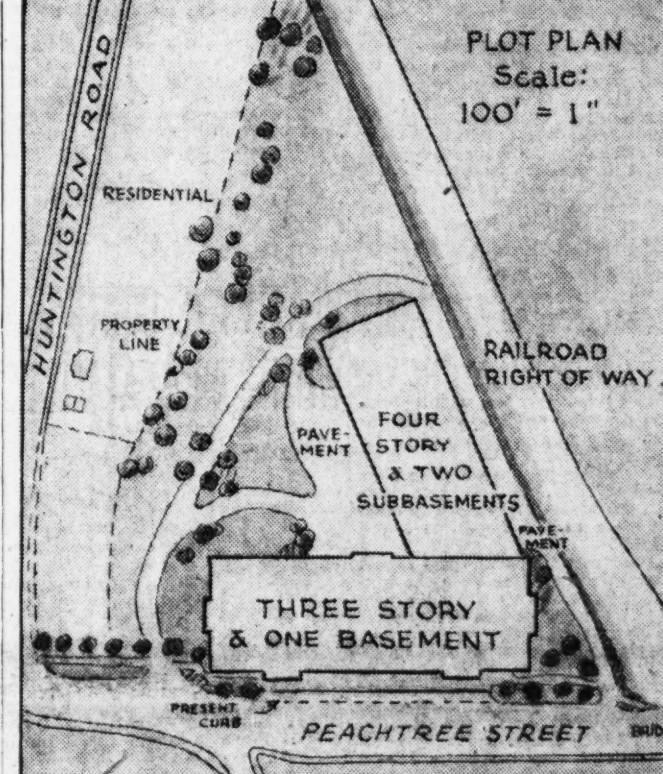

Dave Harris, former Cracker out- fielder, brought the $500 to Dew- berry's office shortly after Wells had deposited his check and had become an active candidate. Harris is a personal friend of the mayor's and has been the funds represented contributions from a number of Key's friends throughout the city.

Wells asserted "no city employee was coerced or cajoled into contribut- ing a dollar of my entrance fee, no group of individuals contributed a dime, nor did I contribute a cent." The administration's good will con- tributed a nickel of it," as he paid his own fee.

Former third ward alderman, paid his entrance fee for one of the two coun- cilman positions from the new first ward. The delegation was headed by Roy O. Rivers and L. W. Rountree.

Nearly $4,000 was paid to Dew- berry for qualification fees during the day.

This is an artist's sketch of how the Montgomery Ward development will appear, if present tentative plans are carried out. As shown, streets would be cut through at the side and at the rear of the new buildings and the grounds not used for building purposes beautified.

Georgia Farmers' Income Climbs 9 Per Cent for First Five Months

Federal Money Accounts for $3,700,000 of $32,660,000 Growers Have Received; Increased Value of Produce Credited With Gain.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)— Georgia farmers' income from prin- cipal products and government payments was $32,660,000 for the first five months of 1936—9 per cent over a similar period last year—the Depart- ment of Agriculture reported today.

The total, the department explained, was not adjusted for the shipment of livestock and for income from those products for which no monthly data by states on marketing prices were available.

The 1936 figure compared with $29,- 790,000 in the first five months of 1935 and $29,857,000 in the first five months of 1934.

Government payments accounted for $3,700,000 of the 1936 total, $2,729,000 in 1935 and $7,382,000 in 1934.

Principal crops brought in $19,- 977,000 in 1936 as compared with $19,- 812,000 in 1935, $16,862,000 in 1934 and $13,276,000 in 1933. $8,983,000 as compared with $7,648,000 in 1935, $5,903,000 in 1934 and $5,105,000 in 1933.

TOWNSEND FLAYS 'SPENDING ORGY'

CLEVELAND, July 15.—(AP)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of the Townsend old-age pension plan, as- sailed today the Roosevelt adminis- tration's "crazy orgy of spending," and told the second national Town- send convention his movement has the support of other groups who seek a "new era of social justice."

Townsend told his followers the pension plan has the backing of the National Union for Social Justice, the Share-the-Wealth movement, and "other groups of unhappy and dis- satisfied voters opposed to the New Deal's crazy orgy of spending," and those "who are working toward a new era of social justice."

LEWIS WILL FACE 'TRIAL' AUGUST 3

'Insurrection' Charges Will Be Brought Before Labor Federation 'Court'

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)— The American Federation of Labor's executive council decided today to sum- mon the 12 unions affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization to a formal trial here August 3 on "insurrection" charges.

The council took this action instead of immediately suspending the 12 unions, as proposed by some of its mem- bers.

The unions will be charged with violating federal law in seeking to organize all the workers in each big industry into one union without re- gard to the rights claimed by craft unions.

Earlier in the day the council had been accused of joining with the steel industry to block unionization.

The charge was made by the United Mine Workers Journal, which said in an editorial:

"The executive council of the Ameri- can Federation of Labor has joined hands with the great steel companies to prevent the organization of the workers in the steel industry."

The letter is sent to every manu- facturing industry in Georgia under date of July 8 and in it Secretary Mc- Grath urges that manufacturers should give financial support, not only to Talmadge for the senate but to his candidate, Charles Redwine, for the governorship.

He says that Mr. Redwine has made the same pledges that were made by Governor Talmadge and that he will carry them out; "however," the letter continues, "the administra- tion forces are actively insinuating their campaign and funds are needed" in support of the campaign of both Talmadge and Redwine.

He urges "the financial support" of the principal industries of the state and requests that "checks be sent to General Lindley W. Cress, treasurer, State Military Department, the capitol, Atlanta."

BROOKWOOD HILLS SITE UNDER OPTION FOR HUGE STORE

City Zoning Commission Hears Request of Mail Order Company, Delays Action Until Tomorrow After Closed Session.

RESIDENTS FIGHT LARGE PROJECT

1,500 to 2,000 Persons Would Be Employed by Firm, With an Annual Pay Roll of $1,500,000.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

Plans for the erection of a $3,000,000 retail store and mail order plant on Peachtree road, at the Southern railway, for Montgom- ery Ward & Company, one of the two largest mail order companies in the country, with headquarters in Chicago, were outlined yesterday afternoon when a petition for zoning the Peachtree road property came before the city zoning commission.

If the zoning request is granted Atlanta will have another tremen- dously large commercial plant, em- ploying 1,500 to 2,000 persons, with an annual pay roll of more than $1,500,000, Marion Smith, attorney representing the Chicago concern, said in urging favorable action on the zoning petition.

A large number of citizens, home- owners living in Brookwood Hills and along Peachtree road, attended the meeting and protested the estab- lishment of the big mail order house in that section. Attorney Smith was aided in his argument for location of the mail order house on the site pro- posed by representatives of the Cham- ber of Commerce, organized labor and other citizens.

Action Is Delayed.

After a lengthy hearing, the zoning commission went into executive session, retiring to the mayor's office. After 30 minutes of consideration the commission postponed action until an adjourned session, to be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

During his argument before the commission, Smith stated that he did not wish to be understood as making a threat, but that he was authorized to say for Montgomery Ward & Com- pany that if this site was refused by the city it would look no further, and would locate here.

Platform of G.O.P. Reactionary--Butler

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, and for many years a prominent figure at republi- can national conventions, tonight said the 1936 convention had recorded it- self as "the most reactionary in the party's entire history."

In a statement issued on his re- turn from Europe, where he spent four weeks in the interests of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Dr. Butler said:

"The doctrines set out and defended in the Cleveland platform are econ- omic nationalism of the narrowest and most dangerous sort."

Were they ever put into practice, he said, "they could only lead to new distress and suffering on the part of the American people and to world war from which no nation would be able to hold itself aloof."

KEY, WELLS QUALIFIED IN MAYORALTY RACE

James L. Key, new first ward; John W. Scott, fourth ward; John W. Ball Jr. and Roy E. Callaway, fifth ward; Frank H. Reynolds, sixth ward; L. G. Hester.

For councilman, new first ward: Cecil W. Hester and Charles L. Chosewood; second ward, William R. (Uncle Bill) Johnson; fourth ward, John T. Marker; James T. Osburn and C. M. (Mac) Bolen; fifth ward, John A. White and J. Frank Beck; sixth ward, Maurice K. Lasseter.

For board of education, second ward: George C. Garner; third ward, Miss Mamie Pitts; sixth ward, J. B. Hanson.

For democratic executive committee: Third ward, J. R. Pratt; fourth ward, B. Ed Cook.

Savage Qualifies.
For city attorney: Jack O. Savage. For building inspector: C. J. Bowen. For city treasurer: Henry B. Kennedy.

Under the new ward consolidation and council reduction plan, the wards were combined as follows:

New first ward: old second and third; new second, old eleventh and twelfth; new third, old first, fifth and sixth; new fourth, old seventh and tenth; new fifth, old fourth and eighth; and new sixth, old ninth and thirteenth.

A large group of announced candidates have not yet qualified, and some of them will defer action for the next several days.

William B. Hartshorn, member of the Fulton county board of representatives, announced for the mayoralty nomination, and is expected to qualify within the next few days.

Tenth Year as Mayor.
When Key completes this year's service as mayor, he will have rounded out his tenth year, the longest time any man has ever served as mayor of Atlanta.

"The people of Atlanta have honored me as they have no other man in the history of the city," Key said last night. "Even if I were disposed to do so, I could do nothing less than come clean with the people of Atlanta."

"When I was nominated mayor in 1929, I promised the people I would not steal anything myself and that I would not allow anybody else to steal anything. That promise has been kept. I adopted a policy that I would not play politics with the people's money or with the city's credit. That has not been done either. A third thing was that I would not allow the mayor's office or city departments to be made a tail end of anybody's kite. I have adhered to that."

Lived Within Revenue.
The city has lived within its revenue, just as I told the people it would do. The membership of the council has been reduced, and that will necessitate some considerable reorganization of the local government. I feel that I might be of some service in launching that program.

"The city must look forward to the time when the $1,500,000 deficit, incurred by me, will be paid off. That must be done, and the city must be put on a cash basis when values are restored as they will be with the present return to normalcy."

"City pay rolls were not reduced any more than was absolutely necessary to preserve the credit of the city, and I might say here that it required a vigorous policy to keep the municipality on an even keel and preserve its credit. At one time, I was forced to refuse to pay out money voted over my veto."

Favors Pay Hike.
"I favor putting pay rolls back and restoring salaries just as rapidly and as soon as revenues warrant. I'll be the first to advocate reinstatement when that time comes, and my record in this respect will bear that out."

"The federal government has been wonderful to the city, and all of its officials have cooperated sympathetically with Atlanta. For the $1,000,000 which Atlanta voted for sanitary sewers, we are getting a minimum expenditure from the federal government in addition to what Atlanta and Fulton county are providing of $4,500,000. That work is progressing rapidly and will be completed within the near future."

"We voted another $500,000 for storm water relief. The federal government made a survey of Atlanta, and told us that the $1,500,000 we had asked as a supplement to the city fund would be insufficient and told us that it would take $2,000,000 in addition to the city contribution, and that sum has been provided."

Unemployment Relief.
"A fund of $275,000 was voted for more than $1,000,000 in social improvements, but the cheap-state politicians on the board got to quarreling and nothing has been done about that. We have provided for unemployment relief in Atlanta through the splendid corporation of local financial institutions. Some people are not concerned for the man who cannot work and make a living."

"So far as I am concerned, I am not willing for people to walk the street hungry and starving, and they shall not do that as long as I am mayor of Atlanta."

"This commission as mayor of Atlanta came to me clean, and it shall go back to the people spotless and as clean as when it was given me. City department heads are co-operating with the administration, employees are working for the best interests of the city."

"Ordinarily, I am not interested in anybody's politics but my own, but I hope the construction department, su-periving the sewer work, doesn't have any opposition. If they do, they'll have to quit work and go to fighting for their jobs."

"At the present time, they are not taking any vacations, they are working at night and any other time they are needed. I don't want them to have opposition and my interest is purely selfish for the prosecution of this sewer program."

Among others who spoke in praise of Key and who offered their co-operation during the campaign were: George E. Longino, of the Fulton county commission; Trammell Scott, sporting goods dealer; Emmett Quinn, labor leader; Frank Berry, cashier of the First National bank; Jack Weinkle, merchant; John Smith, automobile dealer; R. L. Barge, merchant; S. J. Gould and Fred Gould, Dr. S. A. Ferlie, Dr. Sam Green, Dr. M. C. Freeman, president of the new Second Ward Key for Mayor Club, formed yesterday, informed Key by telegram that 100 persons already have been enlisted and suggested that other wards organize.

A telegram from Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crankers, told Key the club is behind him, and exhorted the mayor to win the political pennant.

HIT NORTHERN GEORGIA

ting out of commission the telephone circuit to that community.

Shocked, but not burned, when lightning struck near by in the doorway of a barn, Roy Ellis, 27, Stone Mountain, dairyman, was taken to Emory University hospital at about 7:15 o'clock last night.

His condition was described as serious. He was treated by a doctor in Stone Mountain, and then taken to Atlanta. The bolt struck several feet from where Ellis was standing, it was said, knocking him unconscious.

The damage to the Smyrna airport was reported by Lee Wilson, manager, who said the wind struck the hangar with terrific force at about 7 o'clock last night. The four planes stored in the place were virtually ruined. Only his own plane escaped.

Crops in the vicinity of Athens were greatly benefited by heavy rains of half-hour duration. The first rain fell at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other fell at about 9 o'clock last night.

From Gainesville came reports that hail the size of birds' eggs fell for 20 minutes, beginning at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Crops were damaged by the force of the "missiles," but the extent of the damage could not be immediately determined.

In Atlanta, the rain and high winds promised to cool off the city overnight, but the forecasters said today, they added, the mercury will start at 72 and climb into the nineties before the day is ended. Skies will be partly cloudy and thundershowers in the afternoon are a probability.

Down town, a woman pedestrian narrowly escaped death or injury and an automobile was damaged at about 5:45 o'clock when a large wooden and metal sign was blown off the roof of a vacant three-story building at 393 Peachtree street.

The sign plunged to Peachtree street just as the woman passed, leaving a trail of dangling wires and wreckage. It struck the hood and running board of a sedan owned by L. C. Crawford, official of a paint firm at 387 Peachtree street.

Travis M. Crawford, 21, of 90 Douglas street, Kirkwood, his brother, was sitting in the car, but was unhurt. Power company employees removed the wires. The name of the woman pedestrian was not learned.

A short time previous, a plate glass display window, 14 feet high, was blown out at the J. P. Allen & Company store at 215 Peachtree street, northeast.

Several pedestrians who had sought shelter in the corridor near the window jumped to safety when the window fell, but no one was cut by glass or otherwise injured.

The bungalow residence of Ivan Allen Jr., at 3500 Northside drive, N. W., was virtually destroyed by fire after lightning struck and knocked down a tree in the rear, the bolt then leaping to the house.

No one was in the house at the time it was set afire. Firemen fought the blaze for half an hour. Damage was unestimated, but the interior was completely burned out.

On grounds of the Capital City Country Club, Buckhead, several trees were uprooted on the golf course, the scoreboard and starter's tent were blown down, and a tree fell upon the clubhouse, a lot, slightly damaging the vehicle.

Terrific hail was felt during the storm at this point, and in the entire Brookhaven section. Extremely heavy hail fell upon the automobile of John K. Otley Jr., advertising manager of The Constitution, going through the roof of the car, so great was its force. Heavy hail was felt also in Dekalb county, near Tucker, and a tree was blown down, bringing several power lines with it, at North Decatur and Briarcliff roads. A high wind ripped hail fell in Buckhead, and heavy hail fell in Brookhaven.

Hapeville, East Point and College Park received no damage from the storm.

Jobs allowed for drought sufferers, applicants will be required to show evidence that their present situation is the result of the drought.

Prompt Aid Provided.
Arrangements have been made to take care of those obviously in need of immediate assistance, Miss Shepperson said.

"The works program is apparently the best method of meeting the situation," said Miller.

He will leave Atlanta today for Montgomery to hold a similar drought relief conference there tomorrow.

Cities within the official Georgia drought area as of July 14, 1936, as reported by the extension service and the Rural Resettlement Administration were:

Baldwin, Banks, Barrow, Clarke, Columbia, Elbert, Franklin, Greene, Gwinnett, Hart, Jackson, Jasper, Jones, Lincoln, Madison, Newton, Oglethorpe, Putnam, Rockdale, Stephens, Tallapoosa, Wilkes.

Carroll, Cobb, Floyd, Hall, Haralson, Paulding, Polk, DeKalb, Fulton, Butts, Clayton, Coweta, Fayette, Harris, Heard, Henry, Lamar, Meriwether, Monroe, Muscogee, Pike, Spalding, Talbot, Troup, Upson, Bibb, Chatahoochee, Crawford, Macon, Marion, Stewart, Taylor, Webster, Clay and Quitman.

Showers Help Georgia.
Showers of the past few days were deemed by the weather bureau yesterday as having had a "beneficial effect over most of the state."

The weekly synopsis of weather and crop conditions said there has been more or less improvement over the state during the past few weeks, but until the week-end rains the situation was "becoming continually more discouraging" in several counties from West Point to Athens.

"In those sections," said the report signed by George W. Mindling, "a great deal of the cotton is four to six weeks late."

Heavy Cotton Shedding.
The earliest and most advanced in blooming new cotton in the northernmost counties, while bolls have been produced extensively in the south. There has been heavy shedding during the past week to the hot, dry weather.

"The condition of cotton is mostly good in the southeast, from which it diminishes to very poor in central counties."

The week was unfavorable for corn, the report continued, which suffered a great deal in the southern section where there has been "little or no rain since June 15."

Tobacco Favorable.
"Tobacco curing progressed under general favorable conditions," the report said.

"Cantaloupes and watermelons have been much in need of rain and so have other special crops, including peaches and sugar cane."

"Elber's peaches are rapidly coming to market in good quality, but slightly undersized as the result of prolonged drought."

Rainfall in Georgia Tuesday was confined largely to the southwestern part of the state. Thomassville reported 1.48 inches of rain and Americus had 1.20.

porting board estimated that this year would be second only to that of the September drought at 82-7-8 in reduced feed grain yields, that hay yields would be as light as other drought years excluding 1934, and that a substantial recovery for the nation's corn crop would be realized for a considerable portion."

New relief measures announced during the day in Washington added to the list of states which are suffering from drought. The drought emergency group and included additional counties in Oklahoma. Seven states in the southern part of the country were added to the list of drought-stricken states.

The allocation of products included: Georgia, 5 carloads canned beef, 30 carloads of corn, 1 carload of dry milk, 1 carload of peas, 2 carloads of prunes.

While residents of Michigan, parts of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Minnesota—among the states which have suffered the heaviest losses in life from heat—revelled in cooler weather, disappointment of the grain trade at the failure of a general onslaught on the drought to materialize, was reflected in higher prices. Corn led the bulge with a net gain of around 3 cents.

Chicago wheat prices were up over 2 cents. September's finish was at $1.04-5-8 to $1.04-7-8.

Milk prices were advanced in at least two additional cities, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Freeport, Ill., because of drought reductions in the flow. Concern was beginning to be manifested "either directly or indirectly" in the effect of the drought on retail prices.

Minnesota's Toll.
Minnesota's total fatalities from the heat wave were counted at 733, highest of any state; Michigan's at 566; Illinois' at 461; up 120 over yesterday's figures; Wisconsin's at 443; up 73; and Missouri's at 281, up 90.

Graphically illustrating the effects of the prolonged heat and drought, streams over middle America approached new low stages at numerous points. The Ohio, a menace to life and property only a few months back, was trickling along at 1-70th of its spring flood tide. Its flow was estimated at 8,200 cubic feet a second compared to 568,500 recorded March 28. Engineers on the Mississippi river at Rock Island redoubled efforts to maintain a six-foot channel with the stage there only 1.2 feet above the all-time low water mark established during the 1934 drought.

Power Lines Down.
A checkup at the Georgia Power Company revealed that less than 100 power lines down in scattered sections, mainly from uprooted trees which pulled down wires as they fell. The heaviest damage was reported in Decatur and in the northeast and northwest sections of the city.

Blowing out of transformer fuses resulted in scores of homes being in darkness. Day and night crews were called in, and at least 200 men were immediately put to work to repair the damage.

Street cars, however, were not delayed or interrupted, it was said.

Residents in the northern part of Decatur described the storm there as "a young cloudburst."

Plans for Relief.
At the conference of WPA and RRA officials, the procedure to be followed in the drought relief setup for Georgia's rural population was outlined by Malcolm D. Miller, of New Orleans, regional field representative of the WPA, and Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state administrator. Both had discussed all angles of the program with R. L. Vansant, state director of the RRA, and other officials of both organizations.

Those in need will be required to apply through their county welfare workers, who in turn will pass the application over to the Rural Resettlement Administration representatives to establish that the applicant is not receiving aid from that federal branch.

If the applicant is a sharecropper, share tenant or wage hand, his land-potential will be required to recommend that the applicant be given work with the WPA.

Committees of Relief.
Information as to the applicant's agricultural status will be required from the county agricultural agent, and each application will be reviewed by a county advisory committee in each of the 57 Georgia counties classed as in need of drought relief.

The committee, to consist of volunteer workers, will either be formed from existing committees or newly appointed, but will be so chosen as to be familiar with conditions within their area.

Text of C. D. Redwine's Address Launching Gubernatorial Drive

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 15.—Text of the address delivered here today by Charles D. Redwine, candidate for governor, as released by the candidate, follows:

My friends and fellow Georgians: I deem it a high privilege to have the opportunity to be with you today and discuss with you some of the public questions which concern all of us.

Cartersville and Bartow county are rich in the traditions and history of the south. They have furnished some of Georgia's greatest men and women; men and women who have left the imprint of their lives not only upon our beloved state but upon the entire nation. These great Georgians were great because they stood for the imperishable principles which made this country what it is today.

As a candidate for governor, I am here to discuss with you briefly some of the issues of the campaign which I consider of paramount importance to the people of Georgia.

One of the outstanding questions before the people of Georgia today is the cost of government—and I mean by this the cost of state and local government. It necessarily follows that taxation is the most vital question with which we now have to deal.

Favors Low Taxes.
I am a firm believer in the principle that the state should wrest from its citizens no more toll in the form of taxes than is absolutely necessary to the discharge of the proper functions of state government. If every function of government were paid for by the citizen, it would mean that the state would be a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

Four years ago the people expressed their will upon this question by electing as governor a man pledged to tax reduction and rigid economy in government. Two years later, despite bitter opposition, the people again ratified and approved these economic policies by one of the most overwhelming majorities ever accorded a candidate for public office in Georgia.

The complete performance of the promises of 1932 and 1934 is fresh in the minds of the people.

In announcing my platform at McRae July 4 I said that I favored a continuation of the economic policies which have been practiced in the administration of the state government for the past three and one-half years.

Economic Policies.
Let us see what those economic policies mean:

Four years ago the state owed a floating debt of approximately $8,000,000. The present administration has paid that debt in full. Today the state does not owe a dollar of current indebtedness. The state of Georgia is out of debt, and if I am elected governor I will keep it out of debt.

Four years ago the state was paying nearly $200,000 a year interest to the big banks of the country. Today the state is collecting interest from the people of Georgia. I favor the continuation of this policy.

Utility Rates Reduced.
Freight rates, passenger rates, telephone rates, light and power rates, have been materially reduced, leaving millions of dollars in the pockets of the people of Georgia. I favor the continuation of this economic policy.

In my announcement on July 4, I stated that in my opinion the continuation of the present economic policies of the state government would amply justify the ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment to limit the ad valorem tax rate to one cent in the dollar.

Since the beginning of this century, there has been a demand on the part of the people for some relief from the inequitable system of ad valorem taxation, which imposes the burden of government mainly upon land and other visible property. Almost every general assembly has created commissions to study the tax problem and suggest remedies. The net result of all of this has been the enactment of new tax laws and the imposition of new taxes, without any revision of the ad valorem system.

Pensions Unpaid.
Twenty-five years ago, the taxes collected by the state from the people amounted to $8,000,000 a year. Now the annual state tax bill of the people of Georgia is $32,000,000, an increase of 400 per cent.

There have been heavy increases in the burden of county and municipal taxes. These burdens ought not to be further increased; they ought to be decreased.

All over this state thousands of farms have been sold for taxes, and are now abandoned. In most cases the counties have been compelled to purchase this land, and cannot resell it because no prospective purchaser is willing to assume the tax burden. Business houses and dwellings in cities of this state are being demolished to reduce values so as to lessen the burden of taxation.

Tax Reform Needed.
A system of taxation which permits these conditions is wrong, and the time has come to remedy it. The people of the state now have an opportunity to solve this problem, and to bring about real tax reform.

The opponents of the proposed constitutional amendment contend that the adoption of the amendment will endanger the common schools. This contention is not sound. The amendment itself provides for a five-mill levy on all the property in the state for school purposes.

All of the poll taxes, all of the kerosene tax, and one cent of the gasoline tax are already allocated to the common schools. The income tax law, passed in 1931, will raise approximately three million dollars this year. The income from this source is increasing every year. This tax law was passed for the avowed purpose of reducing the ad valorem tax on property. With Georgia's largest increased income no one need fear that the schools will be amply cared for.

The opponents of the amendment also forbid discussion of the other principles upon which I have declared my candidacy. As the campaign progresses, I shall discuss them fully before the people, and I shall stand squarely upon them.

School Book Proposition.
Before concluding, I do wish to refer to the free school book proposition. This question is no longer an issue in Georgia. The last legislature passed the free school book law. The state board of education last week made arrangements to furnish the four principal books, reading, writing, arithmetic and spelling, for the next six grades. The books will be paid for out of the beer tax. This money is accumulating every day, and by another year the state can furnish the remaining books.

The opposition claims that I tried to block the schoolbook provision in the beer bill. This is not true. They claim that the governor tried to block it. In the next breath they claim that the governor and the president of the senate controlled the senate. These charges are untrue. The schoolbook provision was not blocked. The bill was passed, and I signed it. It was sent to the governor and he approved it. The people are entitled to know the truth. The school children are going to get the books this year, and if I am elected governor they are going to continue to get them.

Taxation Main Issue.
Last Saturday one of the candidates for governor said that taxation would be the main issue in this campaign. I think he is right. That is the real issue. I take it from what he said that he favors increasing taxes. I am against any increase in taxes.

Since I announced for governor all manner of vilification and abuse has been heaped upon me. I am not surprised at this. As the campaign progresses you will hear more. No man who espouses the cause of the common people and boldly advocates honesty, efficiency and economy in government ever escapes such abuse. The purpose of such a campaign is to lead the people to the real issues and to mislead and deceive the people.

This campaign of abuse and vilification will not deter me in my purpose. I am going to the people on the real issues of the campaign, fully confident that they will settle these issues right at the ballot box on September 8.

REDWINE PROMISES ECONOMY IF ELECTED

Banker, With Red Suspect, Precedes Talmadge at Cartersville.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 15.—Charles D. Redwine, candidate for governor, preceded Governor Talmadge here today to keep the cost of government low, if elected.

The Fayetteville banker, president of the Georgia senate, addressed a crowd of farmers here in the morning, promising to keep the cost of government low, if elected.

"I am a firm believer that the state should not place any more toll on people than is absolutely necessary," he said.

Wearing fiery red suspenders, Talmadge political emblem—Redwine pledged he would continue private policies.

"I favor a continuation of economic policies of government," Redwine said, "every dollar of the $8,000,000 debt of four years ago has been paid off."

Redwine, peeling off his coat fairly shouting his words, praised the record of the last four years and said:

"Talmadge has kept every promise he made in 1932 and 1934. He charged when Talmadge office the state was paying $20 a year interest on its bonded debt of the big banks."

"Now we have money in the state and the big bankers are paying interest," he said. "I propose to take that situation."

The crowd frequently pulled his short address with words of praise and encouragement.

Several other candidates for office preceded Redwine. These were Tom Linder, co-sponsor of agriculture; Thomas Davis, Ben Huet and J. J. E. derson, public service committee; William M. Lester, candidate for governor; J. B. Daniel, treasurer, and J. Ellis Pope, candidate for attorney general.

abolition of poverty from our land. A slogan of triumph. With 'em' came out of the first day's session. Martin F. Smith, congressman from Washington, and temporary chairman of the convention, said the slogan with the declaration, friends, we are not going to lose Lemke, we are going to triumph Townsend."

He referred to Representative Lemke, a presidential candidate, the slogan with the declaration, friends, we are not going to lose Lemke, we are going to triumph Townsend."

The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, of the share-the-wealth movement, a Townsend director, said "Dr. Smith has assured me that he will support with himself and others continued and relentless attack on Roosevelt-Farley machine," said Smith.

"I am informed that there are at least 1,000 planted delegates to this convention in the pay of James A. Farley machine to at tempt to sway the minds of the gathered here for sincere purpose Smith said."

Twenty-second Amendment.
Smith disclosed the "essentials" of our campaign this summer. Adoption of a twenty-second amendment to the constitution, to be by Townsend.

"We will require every man for the state legislature in the states of the Union to indicate he would vote, if elected, on the adoption of a memorial to congress moralizing congress to enact Townsend plan, and to submit a constitutional amendment declaring legislation to be lawful and constitutional, and also how he would on the constitutional amendment submitted," Smith said.

"Let those who so freely app epithets 'cheat,' 'fraud' and 'r' eer' to Dr. Townsend and others of our movement look in mirror and see there the reflection of the individuals to which especially and properly apply," said A. Case, the Washington state urer and keynoter of the convention.

stitutional amendment to make the Townsend plan effective.

Townsend convention headquarters announced tonight that he, Charles C. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, would address the convention delegates at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, making the trip by boat tonight.

Townsend leaders refused to say he the address had been arranged, meeting all inquiries with the statement that Coughlin had been invited to address the delegates previously while on a surprise visit here Monday when he left without seeing Townsend personally.

Dr. Townsend told the delegates—most of them gray-haired men in their shirt sleeves—he believed "we shall agree on a program of political action and ours must be a plan of immediate action that will assure the

DEATH TOLL HITS 11 IN SPANISH UPRISING

150 Persons Arrested in Fascists Round-Up; Arms Are Confiscated.

MADRID, July 15.—(AP)—Political and labor warfare claimed a two-day toll of 11 lives tonight and kept Spain in a state of nervous tension.

Rumors of a possible cabinet crisis were denied. The government continued a round-up of known fascists, arresting 150 persons and confiscating arms.

Seven persons met death in various parts of Spain today, in addition to three yesterday. A score of others were wounded.

Two were killed in Madrid and one, wounded yesterday, died today. Two communists were killed at Seville and one rightist died at San Sebastian.

A holdup man who sought to collect contributions for communist funds and his woman victim were shot to death.

The deaths in Madrid were a direct outcome of bitter fights between socialists and syndicalists over a construction strike.

Authorities were much concerned with a holdup tragedy just outside of Seville.

A lieutenant of engineers, Juan Bahomonde, motoring with his wife, stopped at a roadside. He told police he was approached by several men who demanded "contributions to the communist fund."

He refused, he said, and the men threatened him with a knife and a shotgun. The lieutenant then drew a revolver and shot one of the holdup men dead. The other fired the shotgun at Senora Bahomonde's head and in turn was wounded by the husband. The woman died and the second assailant was reported dying.

In a stormy meeting last permanent committee of congress decided to extend a country-wide state of alarm for 30 days.

Jose Maria Gil Robles, rightist leader, was reported to have accused the government of failure to protect citizens and preserve order, and charged officials with the responsibility for the assassination of the monarchist leader, Jose Calvo Sotelo.

FLAWLESS EMERALD IS SOLD FOR $4,950

Gem, Once Owned by Lillian Russell, Valued at $75,000.

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—The late Lillian Russell's "flawless emerald," which had been valued as high as $75,000, was sold at auction for $4,950 today to an attorney acting for Mrs. Edward F. Albee, widow of the Vanderbilt producer.

The attorney, Edwin G. Lauder Jr., said Mrs. Albee instructed him to purchase the ring "for sentimental reasons." She was a close friend of the noted stage beauty, who died in 1922, Lauder added.

The emerald, mounted on a gold band and surrounded by a cluster of nine diamonds, was sold at the direction of Edgar M. Lauder, receiver of the property of Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit, daughter of the actress.

The ring was presented to Miss Russell at the height of her career by a wealthy admirer. Following her death her husband, the late Alexander P. Moore, of Pittsburgh, gave it to Dorothy Caruso Ingraham, widow of the Italian tenor, to seal a betrothal. The engagement was broken and Mrs. Calvit sued to recover the ring, contending her mother had given it to her in 1919. After several years of litigation an amicable settlement was reached and Mrs. Calvit obtained the ring in 1934.

It was ordered sold to satisfy Mrs. Calvit's creditors.

GEORGIA FOOD FIRM VICTOR IN HIGH COURT

National Brands Food Stores Win Right To Use of Name.

National Brands Food Stores, Inc., of Georgia, yesterday won its suit in the Georgia supreme court against the National Brands Stores, Inc., of Delaware and Ohio, to prevent the northern company from operating under its name in the state of Georgia and also won a countersuit filed by the Ohio concern, which attempted to bar operations of the Georgia firm outside the state.

The Georgia corporation brought an injunction against the foreign concern, which has its headquarters in Ohio, seeking to enjoin the latter from using a similar trade name within the state. The Ohio concern countered with an injunction which held it was using the name first and had it copyrighted.

The supreme court yesterday affirmed the Fulton superior court in refusing to allow the foreign corporation to use its trade name in this state and also reversed the lower court in its ruling that the local company could not operate outside the state.

EUROPE IS FOLLOWING 1914 STEPS—GEORGE

Former Premier Says Situation Is Grave; Stresses Peace, Raps Mussolini.

NOTTINGHAM, England, July 15.—Europe is retracing the path of 1914, David Lloyd George declared today.

Addressing his non-party organization, the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction, the one-time premier rapped the national government for the spirit "of despair" by which, he said, it was facing "the terrible prospect in front of mankind."

Saying the situation was "grave and alarming," Lloyd George continued: "We are following the same steps which led in 1914 into the fires of war."

He rapped Premier Mussolini, of Italy, without mentioning him by name and asserted he believed Britain little to fear from Reichsfuehrer Hitler, of Germany.

You are accumulating your hands for a wound that may never be healed," he told his listeners. "Germany may never attack Belgium or France."

In fact, I don't think Hitler is fool. He is not going to challenge British empire again by that act of folly.

You may wait 10 or 15 years to your good Samaritan turn for Belgium and your bandages will not. Instead, you have a member of League of Nations at this moment by the foul hand of rapine and plundered by its fangs."

Lloyd George said "despair pervades and vitiates all the acts of the national government" and added: "The chariot of the League have overturned in the ditch, driven wobbling, unskilled drivers, while dictators are driving faster—in riots of war, with flags flying."

BRITAIN ASKED TO JOIN LOCARNO MEETINGS

PARIS, July 15.—(AP)—France and Great Britain joined efforts tonight to induce Great Britain to attend a three-day Locarno conference and consummate virtual military alliances with Germany or Italy.

Both powers were agreed, authorized sources said, that Great Britain be called upon to fulfill the terms of the Locarno accord of March 1925, that conciliation with Germany has "broken down."

French and Belgian officials said they desired to have quick talks with Britain. But the British wished to postpone them until Britain tries to extricate Italy from her new friendship with the Reich.

The March 19 accord followed London conversations between France, Britain, Belgium and Italy concerning Germany's rearmament of the Rhineland. The powers proposed an international security and economic conference to consider Hitler's peace proposals, made at the time of the Rhineland action. The accord also provided mutual assistance in event of an international crisis.

France and Belgium have notified Britain they desired the conference held in Brussels July 22. The conference originally was set for Thursday this week.

OLIO FIGHT GARNERS MEDICAL RESOURCES

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 15.—(AP)—Resources of modern medicine were marshaled tonight for a fight to the finish with death on a sequestered epidemic front where at least 175 persons have been stricken with infantile paralysis.

Half hoping that the epidemic which already has claimed at least 10 victims has reached its apex, health commissioners rushed a new preventive nasal spray into back-country clinics of Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee.

Dr. Charles Armstrong, skilled after of epidemics in the United States Public Health Service, was joining the battle against the dread disease which cripples or kills its victims.

Prominent Atlantan Honored on Birthday

Major R. J. Guinn, Atlanta insurance leader, was guest of honor at a surprise luncheon yesterday in celebration of his 70th birthday. He is shown above at the left, with Alfred C. Guinn Honored by Insurance Men On Reaching Seventieth Birthday

Major R. J. Guinn, general agent for Georgia of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, was given a surprise luncheon yesterday by members of the Atlanta Underwriters' Association consisting of all of the life insurance agencies with headquarters in Atlanta.

Major Guinn was 70 years of age yesterday.

Members of the association arranged for their usual periodical luncheon yesterday and Major Guinn was one of those accepting the invitation to be present. He had no idea that the occasion was to be made a birthday celebration.

Forty members of the association were present at the Capital City Club and when he entered the luncheon room those at the table rose to greet him with the song "Happy Birthday To You."

Harry I. Davis, of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company, presided at the luncheon. He introduced Alfred C. Newell, of the Columbian National Life Insurance Company, who paid a glowing tribute not only to Major Guinn's long service in the life insurance business but to his record as an outstanding citizen. Major Guinn responded in a feeling address.

A huge birthday cake was brought to the guest of honor and in addition a handsome souvenir, commemorative of the occasion, was presented in behalf of his associates by Mr. Newell.

Major Guinn has been a resident of Atlanta for half a century. He came from Conway, Rockdale county, where he was the publisher of the Times, the county paper of Rockdale county.

He entered business in Atlanta and later became connected with the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company with which he was associated for nine years, after which he became general agent for Georgia of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, which position he has filled ever since.

Telegrams from all parts of the country congratulating Major Guinn on his birthday.

3 AVIATORS KILLED IN RIO PLANE CRASH

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 15.—(AP)—Three aviators were killed and a woman sitting in her home was seriously injured when two naval airplanes collided in flight today.

Both machines fell in flames, one landing at the front door and the other in the back yard of adjoining homes. The pilot of one plane was believed to have been Lieutenant Victor Barroso while two cadets were believed to have been flying the other.

Senor Marcia de Conselcao was taken to a hospital suffering from serious burns.

NEGRO ADMITS ATTACK; MILITIA IS WITHDRAWN

ANNISTON, Ala., July 15.—(AP)—Withdrawal of state troops began today at this city, where race feeling flared to dangerous proportions, settled to its usual peaceful way.

Meanwhile, a negro accused of attacking a white woman was placed in Kilby state prison.

'CRAZY' MAN STARTED NEW MEXICO OIL BOOM

Child's Desire To See Railroad Related as One of Turning Points.

HOBBS, N. M., July 15.—They called Henry Hall "crazy" when he said he was oil in southeastern New Mexico, and they called him "lucky" when he proved it.

Today he owns 15,000 acres of valuable oil royalties, but it was a little girl's desire to see a railroad that enabled him to drill his first well in 1926 and start a boom which in ten years made New Mexico one of the nation's largest producers.

Convinced there was oil in the Hobbs area, Hall tried vainly to interest big companies in a venture he was unable to finance alone.

"But the companies thought I was crazy, and a lot of ranch people around here knew I was," he says.

"I tried for a year to lease some ranch acreage, but whenever I would get the husband to the point of leasing to me, his wife would say, 'What good would that do us?'"

"One day the 15-year-old daughter of the family was in the kitchen when I renewed my arguments. For the millionth time, the mother asked, 'What good would that do us?' and I replied wearily, 'It might bring a railroad.'"

"And that's how I got my lease." The well was a year in the drillings, with operations frequently suspended while Hall sought to borrow a few more dollars to go down a few more feet.

Finally it blew in at 4,000 feet with 5,000,000 feet of gas, but the casing collapsed and the well blew wild for four months, while irate ranches complained to the state that it was ruining their range grass. Hall finally had to plug it.

But the lost well served its purpose. It brought major companies and independent operators into the region. A forest of busy derricks rose about the abandoned one.

Hobbs got its railroad, and it's been "Lucky" Hall ever since.

DISPUTE IS SETTLED

Great Britain Abandons War-time Strait Doctrine.

MONTREUX, Switzerland, July 15.—(AP)—Great Britain, in a compromise settlement of the Dardanelles dispute, agreed today to abandon her broad doctrine of keeping the straits open in wartime.

With most other Dardanelles pact signatories, the British acceded to a Russian demand the straits be closed to belligerent warships when Turkey is neutral.

This strict lockdown would be relaxed only when a belligerent nation sent warships through the straits under the obligations of the League of Nations covenant, or under a League-sanctioned treaty to which Turkey was a party.

Delegations of Rumania, Yugoslavia and Japan referred the new convention text to their governments, with recommendations it be accepted. Bulgaria, however, made reservations.

FORD SAYS ANIMALS ON FARM UNNECESSARY

DETROIT, July 15.—(AP)—Henry Ford, in an interview today said that he hoped to prove within two years that all the animals on the farm "are really unnecessary."

"We can, I believe, get a more plentiful supply of food, cheaper and better," the industrialist said, "by processing the products of the soil, instead of asking cows and chickens to do it for us. In the future, farm animals of all kinds will be out. We won't need them; we will be better without them."

Ford reiterated his oft-expressed view that the world offers more opportunity than ever for youth.

COURT DISMISSES LEMKE ARGUMENT

Relief Under Farm Mortgage Refused North Dakota Farmers.

FARGO, N. D., July 15.—(AP)—Representative William Lemke, union party candidate for president, failed today in an attempt to have the federal court sustain actions under which 10 North Dakota farmers sought relief under farm mortgage moratorium legislation he helped frame.

Judge Andrew Miller, basing his ruling on the decision of the eighth circuit court of appeals holding the amended Frazier-Lemke act unconstitutional, granted motions for dismissal of the 10 actions.

Lemke argued that the act does nothing more than federal courts often do in regular bankruptcy proceedings.

"There is only one new thing that the Frazier-Lemke act does," Lemke, appearing for the defense, declared. "Under regular bankruptcy proceedings, it is within the discretion of the court to grant the mortgagor time in which to redeem his property and often this period runs as high as three years. The Frazier-Lemke bill merely makes this provision mandatory instead of discretionary."

"Under provisions of the Frazier-Lemke act, property is under jurisdiction of the courts the same as in regular bankruptcy proceedings. Conciliators are in fact nothing more than receivers who will act under the jurisdiction of the court."

"If property involved is being dissipated or wasted, or if the mortgagor fails to pay debts, it is within the power of the court to dismiss the action and order the property sold."

MRS. BOLTON TESTIFIES IN HUSBAND'S SLAYING

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred Mary Bolton, quoted by police as boasting "they just don't convict women in Cook county," admitted to judge and jury in criminal court today that she fired the shots which killed her husband, Joseph Bolton Jr., June 15.

Her unexpected testimony caused a sensation in the crowded courtroom. Bailiffs rushed about silencing the spectators.

Her face streaming with tears, the 46-year-old defendant whose previous composure won her the sobriquet of "Marble Mildred," abandoned all her previous stories as she told what happened behind the closed doors of Bolton's insurance office in the Loop.

Finland's War Payment Gains Native Legal Aid

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—Magistrate James Blanchfield seized a chance to make a good-will gesture toward Finland today.

Before him was Karl Kojander, born 37 years ago in Finland, charged with vagrancy.

"We can help people from other countries that didn't pay their war debts," the magistrate said.

"We certainly aren't going to permit a Finn to starve when Finland was the one country that has paid up so honorably on the debt."

He suspended sentence and told a police probation officer to find Kojander a job and a home.

MAN, HEART REPAIRED, LEAVES GRADY FOR JAIL

Stabbed in the heart during a fight June 27, Henry McDonald, 31-year-old negro, of 444 McDaniel street, walked unaided into the police station yesterday after Grady hospital physicians had successfully made repairs on his heart.

When the negro was brought into the hospital little hope was held for his life. A deep stab wound in his heart and a large rip in the pericardium placed him in a precarious condition. But doctors went to work and cut away two ribs, lifted out the heart far enough to work on it and took four stitches in the heart itself and several more in the outer covering.

The organ was replaced, and the ribs and flesh put back in position. Yesterday the negro attested to the physicians' skill when he walked into police station to be held as a material witness in connection with the fight in which he was stabbed.

EXTORTION PLOT LAID TO DETECTIVE, LAWYER

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—A private detective and an attorney were arrested tonight at direction of Acting District Attorney Harold W. Hastings and charged with extorting $2,000 from Harry Bannister, actor, producer and former husband of Ann Harding, film actress.

Hastings said Bannister had come to his office and was questioned concerning the case this morning but that he had not signed the complaint, which was based on information received through "regular channels."

The men arrested were booked as Raymond Deringer, 39, the detective, who listed himself as an "operator," and Jerome Jacobs, 48, attorney.

BOOTLEGGING CHARGED.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., July 15.—(AP)—Charles J. Reese Jr., president of the Florida Association of Liquor Dealers, charged today some 25 percent of business places licensed to sell beer and wine are bootlegging whiskey.

J. F. FLOURNOY PASSES AT HOME IN COLUMBUS

Industrialist Was Pioneer in Development of Section.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—John Francis Flournoy, 89, retired Columbus industrialist, died at his home here tonight after an illness of several months.

He recently returned here from an Atlanta hospital.

Mr. Flournoy was born in Columbus, March 13, 1847, and spent his life in that city with the exception of eight years after the end of the War Between the States when he engaged in farming in Russell county, Alabama, just across the state line.

Returning to Columbus, he engaged in the cotton warehouse business, the real estate business and later electric and railroad development in which enterprises he reached the height of his career.

He served as president of the Columbus Railroad Company from 1887 to 1892, operating electric trolleys at the close of the old horse car days.

He then became one of the organizers of the Georgia Midland railroad, now a part of the Southern railway, and later the Coweta Power Company, which was eventually absorbed by the Georgia Power Company.

During his long career he was prominent in the civic and social life of the city.

He was a Civil War veteran, serving with the Alabama cadet corps and Hood's army.

After the end of the war, Flournoy returned to Russell county, Alabama, and engaged in farming for eight years before entering the cotton warehouse business in Columbus. He continued in that enterprise until 1905.

Two years later he organized the Muscogee Real Estate Company, which became the Flournoy Realty Company, and through it developed extensive residential sections. Flournoy also organized the Columbus Investment Company and served as its president for 10 years. This concern created the Murray building, one of the largest office buildings in Columbus.

Formed Power Company.

In 1902, Flournoy and George J. Baldwin, of Savannah, organized the Coweta Power Company, which acquired land along the Chattahoochee river, and eventually developed the Goat Rock and Bartlett's Ferry dams. It was from these power developments Columbus earned its nickname of the Electric City.

During his active career as a developer, Flournoy also participated in the civic and social life of the city. For 10 years he was chairman of the tax equalization board of Muscogee county and served several years as chairman of the city planning board.

Flournoy was twice married, first to Miss Rebecca Eppin, November, 1869, and later to Miss Mary Welch Reynolds, of Talladega county, Alabama.

Flournoy retired from active business in 1930.

JAYWALKER CASES TO FACE RECORDER

Traffic Chief Warns Pedestrians and 'One-Eye' Drivers Here.

Jaywalkers soon will be walking into police court instead of merely listening to a word of advice from a traffic officer, Captain Jack Malcom, head of the police traffic department, declared yesterday.

And offending jaywalkers will not have a chance at "ticket fixing," he asserted.

"We have been warning pedestrians in Atlanta long enough," he said, "and it appears to have no effect at all. From now on we are going to make cases."

Pedestrians who cross streets in the middle of the block instead of at the properly marked sidewalks may expect arrest whenever caught, he said.

Drivers of cars with only one light also will find that tickets have taken the place of warnings, the traffic director said.

ELKS HONOR DEAD

Governor Sholtz, Is New Grand Exalted Ruler.

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—(AP)—The grand lodge of the most impressive ceremony, Elks at their 72d national convention paid tribute in memorial services today to departed brothers and leaders.

Present Grand Exalted Ruler James T. Hallinan, of New York, who will be succeeded tomorrow by Governor David Sholtz, of Florida, reported Elk lodges of the nation spent $1,304,889 for charity during the past year.

He said this sum was expended variously for scholarships, aid for crippled children, support of the indigent Elks' home at Bedford, Va., holiday charities and care of tuberculars. Present registration at the 400-capacity home is 315, he said.

LARSEN SAYS RIVALS EACH 'TALK TOO MUCH'

ROME, Ga., July 15.—Wash. W. Larsen, Georgia gubernatorial candidate, delivered two addresses today in Floyd county, lashing the state administration and taking repeated digs at opposing candidates.

Describing his opponents as "splendid gentlemen who talk too much," he asserted the present-controlling powers of the state are inefficient.

"I could run the state without a military company," he declared.

Two Peach Buyers in Crash.

MACON, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Two peach buyers, Jacob Rudin, of St. Louis, and Ben Cohen, of Philadelphia, were at a hospital here today for treatment of head injuries received in an automobile accident near Barnesville Monday. Their chauffeur was killed in the wreck. The men are "doing satisfactorily."

SAFETY DIRECTOR PLAN FOR COUNCIL ACTION

Joint Traffic Commission To Place Ordinance Before Body Monday.

Council Monday will be asked to approve ordinances creating a director of public safety with full command of the police department and setting a special division of the recorder's office to try traffic law violators in order to provide uniform punishment.

The decision was made yesterday by a special joint council-citizens traffic commission after a public hearing which the need was stressed for immediate action to curb accidents and preserve the lives and properties of Atlantans.

Councilman John A. White, chairman of the commission, presided. One of the strongest pleas was made by Major General George Van Horn Moseley.

"Revive Spirit," "Atlanta has the kind of government the people want," General Moseley said. "What we must do is revive the old Atlanta spirit of cooperation and progress about which we have heard so much. We should stand on the matter of traffic enforcement and let the government out of the hands of politicians and put it again in the hands of the people."

The commission also voted to request the Georgia legislature to adopt state drivers' license law and to set a special state police patrol to enforce uniform traffic laws, which it asked be passed by the assembly. In addition, the motor division of the revenue commission was asked to provide a block of automobile tags for Fulton county in order that local licensees may be identified more easily.

"Not Ideal Set-up," In insisting on adoption of the safety director measure, White told the assembly: "This is not the ideal set-up, but can't get that until we adopt a manager form of government and let the government out of the hands of politicians and put it again in the hands of the people."

Councilman Howard Haire, a member of the public safety committee, in charge of the police department, made the following comment on the police situation: "As long as we have a chief backed by a group of councilmen and another, a chief of detectives, backed by another group of councilmen, we are going to have factional politics in the police department."

"No man in the world could improve the police situation under these conditions, and we are putting the duty of public safety under the same handicap."

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID TO PATRICK HENRY

HANOVER COURTHOUSE, Va., July 15.—(AP)—His native Hanover county today celebrated the stirring days that heard the cry of its most illustrious son, Patrick Henry, hailed as one who "inspired the American love of liberty for all."

William C. Bullitt, ambassador to Asia and personal representative of President Roosevelt at the bicentennial of Henry's birth, presided at the long-extended ceremony with Washington and Jefferson as the "imperial great" of the Revolutionary period.

Bullitt, speaking before the first performance of a colorful pageant depicting Henry's life, linked his fervor for freedom with modern problems. He called on America to "restore democracy in opportunity."

Johnson Asks Re-election

WILLIAM R. JOHNSON.

JOHNSON IS CANDIDATE
FOR PLACE IN COUNCILEleventh Ward Councilman Seeks Re-election From New Second Ward.

William R. Johnson, who for the past 14 years has represented the eleventh ward as councilman, yesterday paid his entrance fee and qualified for one of the two councilmanic posts from the newly created second ward, composed of the present eleventh and twelfth wards. His candidacy is subject to the September 2 municipal primary.

Affectionately known as "Uncle Bill," Johnson has served for a number of years as chairman of the city sanitary committee and has held membership on many other important committees.

"I have asserted yesterday my campaign will be predicated on his record of honest efficiency."

Johnson issued the following statement concerning his race: "I hereby announce my candidacy for councilman from the newly created second ward, composed of the present eleventh and twelfth wards, subject to the municipal primary to be held September 2."

"For the past 14 years it has been an honor for me to serve as councilman from the present eleventh ward. I have labored honestly and diligently on all of the important councilmanic committees. The public records give an account of my stewardship and disclose numerous accomplishments of which I am justly proud. As chairman of the present sanitary committee, I have consistently and fearlessly safeguarded the health and happiness of all of the people of our fair city."

"It has always been my policy to insist on a conservative and business-like administration of every department of our great city government. If re-elected councilman, I pledge to my constituents the benefit of long and valuable years of experience and a continuation of my best efforts in their behalf."

LASSETER SEEKS PLACE IN COUNCILSalesman Enters Race for Election From New Sixth Ward.

Maurice K. Lasseter, 24, salesman and life-long resident of Atlanta, yesterday qualified for one of the two councilmanic positions from the newly created sixth ward, composed of the present ninth and thirteenth wards. His candidacy is subject to the democratic primary September 2.

Noninterference with the police department and economy in government were the two major planks of Lasseter's platform, according to the following statement he issued at the time he qualified:

"I have been interested in the city government for many years," he said, "and have had a desire to serve the city."

"I have noted that the police department has been the football of city politics. It is my desire to turn it over to the chief and let him run it. It cannot be efficient under so many heads."

"I will fight for an economy program in the city government, and to force the city to live within its income. I favor a city license for automobile drivers as a means of reducing accidents."

LONDON, KNOX CHART.

CAMPAIGN ITINERARY

Republican Nominees Compare Acceptance Speech Notes; Tour Dates Unfixed.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 15.—(AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon and Colonel Frank Knox compared notes on their acceptance speeches today and charted an anti-New Deal campaign which gave Knox the northwest for his first major speaking tour.

Dates and exact itineraries were not fixed. Some observers felt Landon would strike first in the east, possibly with an address at West Middlesex, Pa., his birthplace. At a desk in Landon's study they discussed the acceptance addresses they will deliver when formally notified of their nominations. Representative Bertrand Snell, of New York, permanent chairman of the Cleveland convention, will notify Landon at Topeka July 23; Senator Frederick Steiwer, of Oregon, temporary chairman and keynoter, will notify Knox at Chicago July 30.

Knox said the campaign itineraries would be arranged so he and Landon would not be in the same territory at the same time, but emphasize none had been set up definitely. "I am returning to Chicago, tonight for a couple of days," Knox said. "On Friday I will go to New Hampshire to get in 10 days of solid work on my speeches."

"After my notification, my first speech will be at an Indiana republican meeting at Connersville August 8. I will address a West Virginia rally at Huntington August 12. On some date after these speeches, Knox said he would make his northwest trip."

On Landon's calling list tomorrow was Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, who served as governor of the Federal Reserve Board during Herbert Hoover's administration.

BOYS FATALLY BURNED
IN GASOLINE FLAMES

Burns received when their gasoline-soaked clothing became ignited proved fatal yesterday afternoon to two small negro boys.

The victims, Norman Miller, 6, and Franklin Miller, 3, were playing Tuesday morning with a can of gasoline and some matches in the back yard of their home on Eighth street, N. W., when one of them struck a match and their clothes burst into flames, police reported.

The brothers were taken to Grady hospital suffering from burns on a large portion of their bodies.

The barbecue will be held on the grounds of the municipal golf course near the College Park church, beginning at 7 o'clock that night. Several hundred Methodist officials are expected to attend.

GOOD ADVICE!

In an editorial comment on the recent debate in Griffin between W. T. Anderson, editor of the Maccom Telegraph, and Judge Ogden Persons on the proposed 15-mill ad valorem tax limitation, Editor Quimby Melton, of the Griffin Daily News, expresses the hope that the calm and sane discussion of this important issue by these two leading Georgians will set the pace for the political campaign which will end with the primary of September 9.

Editor Melton points out that the issue was discussed earnestly and forcefully and yet—not a word of criticism was offered by either as to the other's stand. Each was very positive in stating that he knew his opponent was sincere in his argument. And that is how it should be. Just because two men, or two women for that matter, differ on a political or economic issue is no reason why they cannot still respect each other and be friends.

This year as never before the people of Georgia are interested in issues, not personalities.

With the fundamental differences of opinion by the various candidates now offering on both public issues and basic government policies, there should be no place for personalities in the speeches of candidates for any office, high or low.

The candidates for office in Georgia this year should keep cool, avoid personalities, stick to the discussion of their records and of the policies they support.

Too much of vital importance to the welfare of the people and the good of the state is at stake for this to be allowed to descend into a mud-slinging campaign, with more effort being made to belittle the ability of an opponent than to acquaint the people with the pros and cons of the issues involved.

RAILROAD WEEK

"Railroad Week" throughout the country will emphasize the rehabilitation and revitalization of the railroads which has been under way for the past two years.

The extent to which the roads are awakening from the lethargy which was so largely responsible for the slump in their affairs, even during the years of synthetic prosperity, is cited by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, in the statement that "the railroads are making changes in their service, their prices and their methods and better passenger service and higher speeds by the new lightweight trains or by the faster scheduling of conventional trains are matters of almost weekly announcement."

Not only are the railroads profiting through their aggressiveness in going after business lost to other types of transportation, but the entire economic system of the country is being benefited through the huge outlays being made for new equipment and operating materials.

During the first six months of this year the railroads spent more than $450,000,000, this huge outlay including $249,916,000 for materials, $71,340,000 for new equipment and $131,603,000 for coal and fuel oil. The total of the purchases during these six months is the largest for any similar period during the past five years.

The new comforts and speeds introduced by the railroads have resulted in the filling up of passenger cars that for years had been almost empty. By reducing fares the railroads have attracted back many customers who had left them for other methods of transportation and the net result is materially larger revenues, with little increase in expenses because it takes no more to haul a crowded coach than an empty one.

Not only the traveling public, but the investors of the country, holding hundreds of millions of dollars worth of railroad securities, can well afford to give at least friendly interest to the observance of "Railroad Week."

THE CCC INDORS

The overwhelming approval of the Civilian Conservation Corps—better known as the CCC—registered in the recent survey taken by the American Institute of Public Opinion is not surprising in view of the practically universal endorsement of this federal recovery agency by those familiar with the splendid results being secured through its activities.

Although the republican platform includes the CCC among the New Deal agencies criticized, the members of the party throughout the country voted in the "America Speaks" poll two to one in favor of continuing the work of giving employment and training to the young men of the nation, while the democrats voted in approval by 92 per cent to 8 per cent.

What opposition there was to its continuance came from scattered sources and were based on numerous reasons, one of the chief objections voiced coming from peace organizations which objected to the military nature of the training in the camps. This influence is revealed in the fact that while the country as a whole voted 82 per cent to 18 per cent on the question of continuing the camps, the percentage on the question of continuing military training in them dropped to 77 in favor to 23 against.

While some pacifists have waxed warm over the military training given those in the CCC camps, the "America Speaks" survey establishes that the prevalent opinion is expressed by a Wilmington, Del., man who commented that "I don't believe in war, but some of these CCC boys need discipline to keep them out of jail later on."

The success of the CCC lies to a greater degree perhaps than to anything else to the fact that it has been under the direct supervision of the army. Boys and youths taken from lives of idleness on city streets, have learned the value of discipline and their bodies and minds have been developed while they were performing work of lasting benefit.

Largely because weather conditions make it possible to conduct CCC camps on a year-around basis in the south, more of them have been established in the fourth corps area of the army than in any other area in the country. Under the able direction of Major General George Van Horn Moseley the camps in this area have attained such a high quality of efficiency and achieved such outstanding results that they have been taken as the pattern for those in many other sections.

The work of General Moseley and his staff, and the high standard set by the CCC camps under his immediate direction, has contributed largely to the nation-wide approval of the CCC program.

The CCC will no doubt be continued in some form even after its necessity as an agency of the recovery program has passed. It has performed a fine service in the building of manhood and the development of the natural resources of the country, and there is a nationwide approval of the proposal that these benefits be continued.

The manner in which this organization has been developed under its direction is one of the outstanding peace-time achievements of the army.

World's Window

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

German-Italian Air Agreement.

The Germans and the Italians have signed an air agreement with great flourish and pomp in Berlin. It is called a commercial agreement, but it may be something else. There are only two lines which communicate between Germany and Italy and both are a total loss. In fact, most of the Italian air lines are fantastically uneconomic. You cannot expect much air travel in a country where there are as yet less automobiles than in the central European countries. The Italian pays 17 times more for every air line passenger than the Dutch or the British. Its subsidies were withdrawn in Italy, commercial aviation would collapse like a pricked balloon. But the main purpose of commercial aviation in Italy is not commerce at all. Its main purpose is a military reserve for pilots and machines.

Germany, under the Nazi regime, has the same attitude toward commercial flying. For Luft Hansa also serves more economic ends. The Luft Hansa is now quite openly treated as a reserve for the air force. The way in which the civil pilots are constantly being converted into service training. It is therefore not unlikely that the new agreement between only two German strengths something else than commercial ties.

False News.

The London Sunday Dispatch published the other day an article from Paris correspondent which was played up with triple banner lines across the front page, saying "Scenes of Horror and Chaos in France and Belgium. Tourists fear for their lives! Europe in the grip of a new terror. France in the power of bolshevism!" The Sunday Dispatch is the Sabbath name for the Daily Mail and belongs to the same group. Now, as everyone knows, France has been extremely quiet these last few weeks. Nothing in the remotest way resembling scenes of horror have taken place. The French government took occasion to point this out to Great Britain with the remark that the publication of such glaringly false news can make the French people feel that they are being deceived. PARTISAN POLITICS HIT BY EDITOR'S ADDRESS

Charlotte Publisher Defends System of Private Enterprise.

BLUE RIDGE, N. C., July 15.—(AP) Dr. Julian S. Miller, editor of the Charlotte Observer, told the seventh annual conference on human relations in industry here tonight that partisan politics was the most "uncongenial climate within which to settle problems of industrial relations."

Miller, keynoting the conference as it opened here, took as his theme "Industry's Attitude Toward Modern Industrial Problems" and said the only major problem confronting not only industry but all America is whether American system of private capitalism is to survive or a system of political management is to be applied in its stead.

He said there is "no more uncongenial climate within which to settle problems of industrial relations which call for cool reason, sober thinking and spiritual impulse than in the hot, seething caldron of partisan politics."

Defending the system of private enterprise and individual initiative with reservations, he said three district challenges to the perpetuation of constitutional democracy have arisen within recent years:

The challenge of "disreputable and dishonest capitalism itself; the endorsement of new authority upon organized labor, and the popularity of the swing in public sentiment toward socialistic control."

He said it was the primary task of private industry to defend itself and to justify the principle and the procedure upon which it has operated since America was born.

"EARL OF PELHAM" DENIED NEW TRIAL

Insanity Plea Fails To Win Another Hearing for Lee, Convicted of Fraud.

A new trial was denied Robert E. S. Lee, the so-called Earl of Pelham, yesterday by Federal Judge William H. Barrett.

Lee's insanity, as set forth in the finding of an army court-martial when he was discharged from the army as incompetent in 1918, was the main point set forth by the attorneys as their argument that Lee's trial was unfair.

Judge Barrett reminded his attorneys that Lee had refused to allow this evidence to be admitted at his trial.

"I saw no indication of insanity," commented the judge. Attorneys gave notice they would file an appeal. The law allows them 90 days in which to file the petition for an appeal.

WYOMING ESTIMATES HUGE CATTLE SHORTAGE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 15.—(AP) Russell Throp, secretary of the Wyoming Cattle Growers' Association, estimated today the drought has caused a shortage of 300,000 cows in Wyoming.

"The situation is more serious than most people believe," he said.

"Because of the shortage in female stock it will take at least three years for the cattlemen to build their herds back to normal condition even under ideal weather situations."

Usually the cows are held from market and kept as the foundation for future herds but Throp said feed and water conditions have forced the ranchers to sell this year.

'ANTI-RED' ORDINANCE WILL BE REDRAFTED

City Attorney Jack C. Savage will redraft the ordinance offered by Alderman Robert Carpenter to tighten local laws against red activities.

When Councilman J. Allen Couch, chairman of the ordinance committee, yesterday called the public hearing, several imperfections were pointed out.

Carpenter then asked permission to withdraw it and allow the city attorney to redraft it. The request was granted.

SHIP COLLISION LAID TO CONFUSED SIGNALS

Many Injured, Shaken as Steel-Laden Freighter Rams Steamer.

BALTIMORE, July 15.—(AP)—A vague report of a misunderstanding in signals spurred an official inquiry today into the cause of a collision between a heavy freighter and a bay steamer carrying 195 passengers on a convention cruise.

The collision occurred about 10:30 o'clock last night off Seven Foot Knoll in the Chesapeake bay. The outbound freighter Golden Harvest, loaded with steel, rammed its prow 10 feet into the side of the inbound steamer State of Virginia.

Aboard the steamer members and guests of the Automobile Trade Association of Maryland were watching a floor show. Badly jolted by the impact, they scrambled for life preservers. Near panic reigned until they transferred to the freighter.

Hours after the bruised and shaken passengers including Governor Harry W. Nice, had come safely ashore aboard the passing ferry boat Pittsburg, the cause of the crash remained unexplained.

An officer of the steamer said there had been a "mixup in signals" between the two vessels.

Officials of the Old Bay Line, owners of the State of Virginia, said they also would investigate the crash. The vessel still were aboard the vessels tonight.

FRANK REYNOLDS ASKS COUNCIL RE-ELECTION

Councilman Offers in New Fifth Ward; Heads Police Committee.

Frank H. Reynolds, who for 16 years has represented the present eighth ward as councilman or alderman, yesterday qualified as alderman from the newly created fifth ward, composed of the present fourth and eighth wards. The candidacy is subject to the September 2 city primary.

Reynolds has served as mayor pro tem, acting as mayor and presiding over council and the aldermanic board because of his office. He is now chairman of the public safety committee of council, which controls the police department, and is chairman of the important sewer committee, under whose direction the city is co-operating with the federal government in a $7,000,000 sanitary sewer program.

He also holds membership on the parks, zoning and electric lights committee.

Reynolds also is prominent in local insurance circles.

In entering the contest, Reynolds made the following announcement: "I have attempted to be of constructive and progressive service to the people of my ward and of Atlanta during my terms as councilman and alderman. It has been my policy to insist on economy in government and to provide such improvements as could be obtained within the financial ability of the city."

"If re-elected as a member of the city's legislative body, I shall continue to give honest, faithful and conscientious service to the people of this city. A long platform is of no consequence, especially in my case. The people of Atlanta know me, they know my record and I place my political future in their hands."

HINDENBURG DEPARTS ON HOMEWARD TRIP

LAKEHURST, N. J., July 15.—(AP) The dirigible Hindenburg, with 51 passengers aboard, was speeding across the north Atlantic today toward its home base at Freeport, Maine.

The giant ship left here at 11:04 p. m. last night, Atlanta time, and headed directly to sea, avoiding New York because of adverse weather conditions reported north of here.

commission—that on which the der is already occupied by com-cial houses. It will take probably 60 days to complete the zoning, as soon as this is done the entire quish its options, as they are all conhe said, "but they would like to come to Atlanta. It takes a leading thought and leadership to make the difference between a business and a failure. They have got to have a location such as is a threat, but since there seems

Smith told opponents of the change, traffic conditions, that negotiations were being conducted with officials of the Southern railroad for widening

Other speakers for the proposition were Ivan Allen, Dr. A. L. Curtis and Leon D. Wofford, chairman of the building trades council, who stressed the great amount of work the erection of this enterprise would create here for the unemployed. "Labor wants this big enterprise," said Mr. Wofford. "We need it to give work and bread and life to hundreds and hundreds of our workers."

TALMADGE'S CHARGES
ASSAILED BY RUSSELL

and navy, and take away every dollar of the money now being drawn by the disabled soldiers of this state."

Russell Statement.

Senator Russell's statement follows:
"The speech made today at Cartersville demonstrates beyond any doubt that Governor Talmadge has completely lost his temper. Evidently he has become desperate at the reports of the rising tide of sentiment that will retire him to private life in September."

"As I predicted some time ago, he is changing his platform."

"In his Cartersville speech today he did not mention a single plank of his McRae platform except his promise to take the income tax off of his friends Raskob and duPont and the other multi-millionaires of this country. Of course, this would have the effect of stopping all of the benefit payments to the farmers of Georgia, who are this democratic administration is trying to help through the government checks they receive, but the Governor did not tell the farmers that the money was tainted."

"Heard From Farmers."

"He has heard from his farmer supporters since this campaign started, and is trying mightily hard to forget about the things he learned from the millionaire republicans in their clubrooms in Philadelphia and New York, when those big boys took advantage of him by appealing to his vanity, and deceived him into the idea that he was a candidate for president."

"He has also heard from some of the democrats of Georgia, and today he almost willingly admitted that the President might show some fairly good qualities if he were not led around by a ring in his nose by some of his cabinet members. The Governor will get even more complimentary of the President before this campaign ends."

"As he travels about the state, the atmosphere of those republican clubrooms will gradually disappear. He will continue to repudiate the things he did against the underprivileged, the old, the infirm, and the helpless in his desperate efforts to stem the tide.
"Night, deny veto."

"I should not be at all surprised to hear him deny vetoing the old age pension law, and declare himself a strong advocate of security for the old, the crippled children, the blind, and the helpless, as soon as he gets all that he can out of Messrs. Raskob and duPont and their associates, who are used to get the money."

"I am surprised that the Governor so completely forgot himself as to make false statements about my record in congress this early in the campaign. Someone had been going about Georgia trying to deceive the ex-service men by telling them that I voted against the bonus, and the Governor made this untrue statement at Cartersville. I am glad to bring this into the light."

"He cannot deceive the veterans of Georgia as to who their friends are.
To throw the mantle of charity about this false statement, I will merely say that the veterans of Georgia know their real friends better than anyone else. They know I voted for the bonus every time it was before congress during my term, and they resent this attempted deceit on the part of a man who advocates in one breath cutting off every dollar of compensation being paid the wounded and disabled of the World War, and proclaims his friendship at the next breath."

"Words and Promises."
"Words and promises will not take care of our wounded and disabled, and if the Governor were to achieve the impossible and carry out his platform pledge at McRae, not only would he take away the farmers' benefit payments, stop all drouth relief, cri-ple the postal service, disband the army and navy, but he would take away every dollar of compensation now being drawn by the disabled soldiers of this state.

"He does not dare to continue to stand on the platform he so proudly proclaimed at McRae, and tell the people of Georgia just what he would spend the billion dollars for. This was the amount he had fixed for the government to collect for all purposes out of the sweat and hides of the poor people after he has relieved Messrs. Raskob and duPont and their cohorts of all income taxes."

"The Governor was rather bitter in his criticism of some of my votes in behalf of some acts of congress later declared unconstitutional."

"Before the Governor was carried up on the mountain tops by the millionaire republicans of the RaskobduPont gang, he was loud in his praise of most of those acts, and of the President. Before Messrs. Raskob and duPont told him what a terrible thing it was for the government to be in business, he praised the Tennessee Valley Authority, neither did he object to the government lending money to farmers at a low rate of interest then, but now he says he will stop all government loans to farmers."

Recalls NRA Parade.
"By the way, what became of the picture of the Governor riding a horse at the head of the parade celebrating the NRA? It will probably be resurrected to see how it jibes with his present criticism of the unconstitutionality of that act."

"It is an established fact that in addition to the thousands of dollars poured into the Governor's campaign chest by the Raskob and duPonts for the Grass Roots convention, the officers of the Georgia Manufacturing Association are now writing to leading industrialists urging large contributions to the Talmadge campaign, and the Governor's chief of staff has sent out the Macedonian cry for funds.

Not many Georgia farmers are going to send quarters or dimes in response to the Governor's invitation, to be mingled with the tens of thousands of dollars forwarded from Wall Street by the Raskob-duPont interests, and the large donations from such of the leading industrialists as see fit to contribute, to try to send the Governor to Washington to cut off their government checks, and forever to bar the old and infirm, and the crippled and blind in Georgia from sharing in the benefits of the humane social security program of the administration.

"Fragments of Imagination."

"Most of the Governor's attacks on me were fragments of distressed imagination, just as was his charge that I voted against the bonus. And also, please tell us where you ever got the idea that I made $15,000 a year practicing law at Winder. If I had accumulated funds in such huge amounts I would probably be able to buy me a few farms, and build a few fish ponds, instead of being no better off today than I was when I was first elected to public office. I am now engaged in a contest against the great wealth of this country on a shoestring, but I am glad that I have the whole-hearted backing of the real democrats of this state."

"Instead of going back to 1927 to try to make an issue of my record in the Georgia legislature, which was thoroughly refuted in my successful campaign for governor and for the senate, come on and tell us some more about the McRae platform. Don't forget it entirely. Tell us how the farmers' money from Washington is tainted, and how you propose to cut it off. Tell us how valiantly you are going to defend the Raskob and du-Ponts from federal income tax, in order that the pitiful appeals of the old folks of Georgia for pensions may fall on deaf ears."

Questions Talmadge.
"Tell us when you first decided that Franklin D. Roosevelt and this administration were destroying our form of government, you heaped large praise on it in your campaign for re-election as governor two years ago.
Every one of the laws of which you complain had been passed at that time."

"When the question of party loyalty was raised, you said that Talmadge and Roosevelt went together like ham and eggs; but as soon as you had been elected, you succumbed to the appeal of great wealth in this country and left the people who had made you in your public career."

"I know it is a sad disillusionment to wake up in this campaign and find that you are a leader without an army, and that the farmers and working men who had followed you cheerfully when you were really working in their interest did not move one foot past the crossroads where you left the people of Georgia flat and embarked on your adventures in the rush fields of republicanism, and were introduced into the Philadelphia organization by Mr. George L. Mark-land Jr., president of the Philadelphia Board of Trade, and a rabid republican, at a meeting presided over by Justice Robert W. Moschizsker, also an active partisan republican."

"There is no community of interests between your millionaire friends, headed by Raskob and duPont, and the interests of the Georgia farmer or working man who digs his living out of the ground. You cannot serve them both in a public office, any more than you can mix oil and water. The farmers of Georgia are smart enough to know that the things that can help this group of masters of finance cannot fail to hurt them, and though it grieved them to have you desert the people who elected you before you ever had met Raskob and duPont, they are not going to follow you into the reactionary republican ranks.

"By the way, also tell us what has become of Kirby and Muse, who testified before the senate committee that they raised the money from duPont and Raskob for the Grass Roots convention? Are they still your solicitors among the millionaires of the Liberty League? Don't fire them, they get results."

GEORGIA FARM INCOME
ADVANCES 9 PER CENT

1933.
The Georgia increase in cash receipts from principal farm products compared with a general increase of 10 per cent in the south Atlantic region, excluding government payments.

Including the payments the rise was 5 per cent.

The report attributed the regional rise "largely to the higher prices of potatoes and the more than seasonal increase in marketings of cotton lint."

For May of this year, the department reported a one per cent decline over May, 1935, from livestock items, although Georgia showed an increase from $1,375,000 to $1,408,000.

The regional livestock decline, the report said, came "as a result of the smaller receipts from eggs, cattle and butcher fat."

"It was more than offset," the report added, "by a 12 per cent increase in receipts from crop items, as a result of the larger receipts from potatoes, cotton lint and citrus fruits."

The south Atlantic region includes Georgia, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Florida.

South Carolina and Florida showed substantial increases as well as Geo-gia.

EDUCATIONAL MEET CLOSED AT ATHENS

B. M. Grier Discusses Division of School Leadership.

ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—The division of leadership in school service, reviewed by B. M. Grier, superintendent of Athens city schools, was closing feature today of a three-day educational conference.

The conference, sponsored by the state education department and the University of Georgia, began Monday to consider quality of instruction, training levels of teachers and teacher improvement.

"Professional leadership," said Grier, "will be in the hands of those who are technically trained for definite educational service, and who give their entire time to school work. Lay leadership will be carried on by men and women, but who give the major part of their time to non-school matters."

Mrs. A. H. Reeve, of Philadelphia, past president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, among those who addressed the conference, said "Lay responsibility is the big problem facing education today."

P. T. A. OPENS 3-DAY CONFERENCE.
ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—The Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers begins a three-day institute here today. Mrs. Charles D. Center, of College Park, president of the Georgia congress, will direct the three-day P. T. A. meetings.

Failures in College Are Attributed To Ignorance in Use of Words

University of Georgia Psychologist Reports Survey Shows Spelling, Automobiles and Failure To See Value in Subjects Are Contributing Factors.

ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—"Students fail in college because of lack of training in English as a tool, more than for any other reason," Dr. A. S. Edwards, head of the psychology department at the University of Georgia, has concluded from studies just completed. "This lack of training," Dr. Edwards states, "is the greatest educational defect."

Students themselves, according to the psychologist, stress above all other causes of their failure, the requirement to take courses they do not like. According to the studies of Dr. Edwards, failures are correlated especially with the following: insufficient knowledge of English words and their meanings; serious defects in spelling; entering on probation; limited education of parents; disorderly conduct; not living up to ability indicated by psychological tests; lack of ability; excessive absences; broken homes and worry over home and personal conditions; wealth, automobiles; too many extracurricular and social activities; lack of application; lack of study; lack of interest; wasting time; failure to see value in subjects studied; wrong attitudes, e. g., "Thought he could get by without studying."

Failures are correlated to a very small extent with physical and mental disorders, disease, defects, and operations.

Students with 12-year training before entering the university are uniformly superior to those with 11-year training. This is true, it is found, on the psychological examinations, the survey examinations, and final examinations for the fall quarter. Some 11-year students do as well or better than 12-year students.

Immaturity and lack of training are evidently causes of failure, but not youth. Fifteen and 16-year students do as well or better than older students.

The most serious situation seems to be where students are taking courses in which they do not understand the language, and, indeed, where they do not have a fair knowledge of common English words and their meanings.

Failures seem to be the result of a combination of difficulties which have not been overcome. With many there is insufficient interest and purpose. Many make up their lack of training by extra effort and application. Men of limited mental ability achieve passing and even good grades. It appears that students can to a very great extent overcome their handicaps, Dr. Edwards says. The volitional factor, intention, determination, application, etc., seem to be most essential to the success or failure of the student.

WASHINGTON, GA. BANK REPORTS 16-YEAR HIGH
WASHINGTON, Ga., July 15.—Thomas J. Barksdale, president and cashier of the Washington Loan & Banking Company, attributes improved conditions to "a vision" of President Roosevelt.

His banking report reveals $591,299 in deposits, the greatest since 1920. From a low of $401,363, just before Roosevelt assumed the presidency, total resources of the bank rose to $729,352 at the end of the first six months of 1938.

Declaring a "world-wide crash" was impending when Roosevelt came into office, Banker Barksdale said "no one knew the remedy, but Roosevelt had a vision and closing of banks was the prescribed medicine."

TWO YOUTHS CHARGED IN MATTOCK BEATING

Boy Says He Was Lookout While Other Struck Toccoa Wife.

TOCOCA, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Sheriff Fred Stowe said today charges of assault with intent to murder and robbery had been placed against two white boys, whose names he gave as Sanford Scott, 17, and Cecil Smith, 16, for the beating of Mrs. Joseph Herring at her mountain home last Saturday.

The sheriff said the younger boy signed a statement that he served as lookout while the other struck Mrs. Herring over the head with a mattock in order to rob the house.

Stowe quoted the younger boy as saying the affair had been planned for two months in the belief Mrs. Herring and her husband, a retired army major, had considerable money.

First Sought Job.

Major Herring, absent from home a few hours on a business trip, returned to find his wife unconscious in the garden from severe blows on the head.

Sheriff Stowe quoted the younger boy as telling him the pair first went to the Herring home in search of a job, and later went back to borrow a mattock on pretense of wanting to dig some fish bait.

Instead, the sheriff said he was informed, the boys dug up a plant in a school yard and went back to the Herring home. The older boy, the sheriff said, offered to help Mrs. Herring put the plant in her garden and as she leaned over, she was struck three times on the head with the mattock.

The sheriff stated the younger boy told him he stayed out in the road to serve as a lookout, but heard the three blows and also heard Mrs. Herring scream twice.

The younger boy was quoted by the sheriff as saying his companion went into the house and loaded a shotgun, brought it outside and then put it back. The older boy, the sheriff said, came out with a portable typewriter apparently believing it was a suitcase, and hid it.

Afterwards the two separated to meet later in town where the younger boy, the sheriff said, was told to say a negro had forced his companion to hit Mrs. Herring while holding a gun on him.

Mrs. Herring, now semiconscious, is slowly recovering from the attack. She was unable so far to furnish officers with any description of her assailant.

Cotton Record Sought To Claim Lost Fortune

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—Ben H. J. Scull, of Morrilton, Ark., appealed to the New Orleans Cotton Exchange today for records of a pre-Civil War cotton transaction which may bring him a fortune.

Henry Planché, secretary of the exchange, said Scull wrote that his grandfather sold 2,000 bales of cotton before the Civil War and that the payment was deposited in some European bank.

At the rate of 13 cents a pound, at about which price cotton was selling in 1858, the sale was for approximately $130,000.

Scull said he believed the money had drawn interest since its deposit. He wrote that the bank book was sent to his father but that it was afterwards destroyed in a fire and no proof of the transaction is needed to obtain title to the deposit.

Secretary Planché replied that the cotton exchange was not organized here until after the Civil War. The firm which Scull said handled the transaction, Moses, Greenwood & Company, is out of business.

LANGWORTHY STATES CAMPAIGN ISSUE

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 15.—(AP)—Herman Langworthy, chairman of the platform committee of recent republican national convention, said tonight the questions of "whether we are to continue our American form of government" and "whether we are to have an economical and administration of government" constituted the two great issues of the 1936 presidential campaign.

Langworthy, a Kansas City lawyer, asked the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs if the nation was "to turn headlong in change in our form of government following unknown paths, or whether history has demonstrated lead to no other result than the destruction of real American life."

The financial issue, he said, solves itself into one of sound administration versus "wasteful, extravagant and political spending which certain to lead to national financial disaster."

Attractive Peachtree Road Apartment Will Be Occupied by Bride and Groom

By Sally Forth.

A CHARMING apartment awaits the return two weeks hence of the newly wedded Olin Adcock, whose marriage yesterday was an interesting social event. Olin and his beautiful young bride, the former Mary Sage, will reside at 2219 Peachtree road. The decorative and colorful motif in the apartment will be a perfect background for the blond loveliness of the young bride.

In the living room, turquoise blue, jonquil yellow and off-white is artistically combined. The off-white walls form the effective background for the turquoise blue rug and satin draperies of the same shade. Jonquil yellow is introduced in the barrel-back satin chair which is placed before a handsome Governor Winthrop desk. An inviting and comfortable English lounge is covered in chintz with tones of blue, yellow and off-white predominating. Large white pillows placed at either end of the lounge add a cozy and intimate touch, while a convenient feature is a small coffee table placed before the lounge. Placed at either end of the lounge are end tables, upon which rest off-white lamps which cast a soft glow.

The attractive little dinette is furnished by a large window draped in canary taffeta. The Duncan Phyfe drop-leaf table is surrounded by chairs upholstered in white leather. Adding a colorful note is the tier-table topped with white potted plants. Opening from the dinette is a small kitchen done in red and white in which the young bride will display her culinary achievements.

The charming boudoir is in DuBarry and ice blue, the latter color being used on the walls, while the twin beds are covered in an ice blue cover trimmed in DuBarry. The blond hairwood furniture is a perfect setting for Mary's blondness, and the dressing table is draped in an ice-blue taffeta. Ornamenting the table are dainty twin Dresden figure lamps, and placed between the beds is a night table, upon which rests a lamp with an off-white shade and shade.

WEIGHT DETERMINED BY FOOD HABITS

Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you weigh.

If you are an overweight, you like French fries, French bread, and assorted carbohydrates, proteins and fats in any form. Coffee without cream gives you a bitter outlook on life, spinach puts a four-tooth on your edge, and you would have to be starving to eat one of those anorectic-looking vegetable plates with poached egg. You like salads, with plenty of dressing, and Roquefort cheese is your favorite! You take the fat meat with the lean, and like rich gravies. You like to top off dinner with apple pie a la mode.

If a man, you are an epicure, and if a woman, you are famous for your good cooking. Eating is your favorite pastime and you are inclined to accept embonpoint philosophically—it's your nature to be overweight. Underweights, as a group, are inclined to be finicky about food and have many idiosyncrasies. You like plain food, well cooked, and not too much of it. You never eat the fat part of the meat; you relish salads and leafy vegetables, and could live on fresh fruits. Bread is an unimportant part of the meal. You prefer beverages not too sweet, and you invariably leave the crust of your pie. You may be constitutionally slim, but your food habits are the reason you are thin.

In each of these groups food habits are largely responsible for abnormal weight. If you will observe the eating habits of the stylish stout, you will find that in general they like to eat, and prefer rich foods, and that the underweights just naturally choose all the foods that are low in calories.

Going on a diet to gain or lose weight is of no permanent value unless you change the food habits which control your weight. To check a trend toward obesity, the best starting point is to trim the fat from the meat, cut down on the gravy, limit the amount of bread and butter with the meals, take fruit for dessert and learn to like beverages with less sugar and cream.

Those of you who are inclined to be too thin must consistently eat foods prepared in the forms which include concentrated calories; as, cream soups, scalloped vegetables, cream desserts—and use plenty of whole milk.

There are always exceptions to every rule, and neither the lean nor the fat person who extravagantly burns her calories, nor the short, stocky individual who gains on a very low calorie diet, conforms to these general groups. However, when analyzed, it is seen that the lean person's food habits are not particularly fattening, and that the stocky ones do not naturally choose foods low in calories.

Regardless of inherited tendencies, weight trends parallel food habits. Balanced Evening Menu.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

"An Exhausted Parent Speaks" is the caption of an anonymous article in July Harpers in which a modern mama indicts her children and their friends as being "an assured, bad-mannered, self-satisfied lot of youngsters." She protests the attitude of the present generation of young people which says in effect: "My life is my own, I will live it to suit myself and if that doesn't suit papa and mama, it's too bad. This modern mama admits that she and her husband turned themselves inside out for their children, giving them best educational and social advantages, throwing the home wide open to the children and their friends. Yet after all these years of selfless devotion she discovers that their manners are boorish, their behavior vulgar and their attitude one of utter disregard of anybody or anything but their own pleasure. She vows she is fed up, disgusted and ready to stand with her back to the wall and fight for her rights which she didn't mean to relinquish even when she was "pouring herself out like liquid into an ever absorbing, exacting little lives." It is too late for her to do this. The horses are out of the stable and locking the door is a mere mockery.

There seems to be no doubt about the fact that many of the young people of today are swinging into the saddle and riding roughshod over puzzled parents who get up, shake the mist from their eyes only to be knocked down and ridden over again and again. But these rough-riding youngsters are products of homes where the parents indulged themselves by lavishing too much love, luxury and liberty on their offspring. Allowing for the spirit of revolt that is in the air, allowing for the modern teaching which says the home exists for the child and that every individual has the right to lead his own life whether or not it suits his parents, and allowing for all these influences the little one who has been taught respect for parental authority, the little one who has been disciplined and therefore learned self-discipline is not growing up with the every-man-for-himself-and-the-devil-catch-the-hindmost idea. Neither the atmosphere which they breathe nor the pill doses of psychology that they gulp in college will poison them if they have had a balanced ration of parental affection, friendship and discipline.

Puppies, kittens and all other household pets must be housebroken when young or they become household nuisances. Boys and girls must be taught to respond to the sound of the master's voice and to take affectionate regard for the hand that feeds them or they, like the young animals, are no pleasure to parents. Yet the truth is that before man and papas can control their children they must control themselves and this is where parents stub their toes. When there are plenty of servants who dog the girl about keeping her clothes in order and setting her room to rights? When there is plenty of money in the bank which say no to any caprice of the children? Why not make the easy for them when they are young? Tidy and trouble will come soon enough. The majority of these papas and mammas remember a youth that had more work than play, more love than luxury and now that they are in position to make life velvet smooth for their progeny they can't deny themselves this delight.

The child growing up in a home where every wish is gratified as soon as expressed, where he hasn't been taught consideration for other members of the family, where he hasn't been taught to give up and give when there is conflict, where he hasn't learned the meaning of a no from the lips of his parents, is certain to join the new army of the youthful rough-riders and it is his own parents who have prepared him for the ride. They shouldn't groan when they are knocked down and over-ridden.

"Let Your Stars Guide You"

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON, Foremost American Astrologer.

"And there shall be signs in sun and moon and stars."

"ATLANTA'S WHO'S WHO IN THE ZODIAC."
GLADYS HANSON SNOOK.

Gladys Hanson Snook, nationally famous actress, whose achievement and accomplishment under her stage name of Gladys Hanson, is a woman who has a very unusual place in the world of drama, was born in Atlanta, Ga., under the zodiacal sign Virgo, September 5th marking her natal day.

The sun in the intellectual sign Virgo, with Mercury, the planet which rules the intellect, dominant, would give her a natural tendency toward artistic expression, and as due to her application is to Neptune, conjoined with Jupiter. This shows her with an unusual individuality, the ability to merit and receive high honors.

The moon, representing the public, is powerfully placed. It gives popularity with the masses, particularly through the drama and the movies.

The position of the planet Venus in her chart indicates that she has artistic gifts, but that she has developed and cultivated all phases of self-betterment.

The position of Jupiter, the planet governing success and personal expansion, bestows success in new things and with new ideas. This is evidenced by the fact that not only is Miss Hanson one of America's best known and best loved actresses, but she has achieved through her talent, a definite place in the world of radio and movies.

The position of Venus and Jupiter in this chart show that regardless of what she has already accomplished, there are greater honors in store for her.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Constitution, compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best known astrologers. When you have checked each of your numbers your forecast will be complete.

"WATCHMAN, WHAT OF THE NIGHT?"

INSTALLMENT I.

About the time that Alonzo bids his Melissa the fourteenth farewell at the garden gate, and pater familias calls angrily from his noisily raised window, there sets forth into the city a struggling army of toilers whose duties lead them into laborious ways while the great world slumbers more or less sweetly upon its pillow.

Time was when all honest burghers were night-capped and somnolent at an early hour, and the silent streets knew naught but the echoing tread of the watchman who swung his lantern down the lonesome ways and started at his own loud cry of "All's Well." But modern ideas have almost turned the night into day. While we slumber at home, hundreds are toiling that we may have our comforts in the morning. The baker is at work upon our morning rolls; the milkman is at his pump; the butcher is busy choosing his oldest cow to kill; the poor watchman is slumbering in a cold doorway; the fireman is on the alert; the drug clerk sits heavy-eyed, prepared to furnish our paragonic or court plaster; the telephone girl chews gum and reads her novel while the clock chimes wearily on; the printer clicks away at his machine; the reporter prowls through the streets hunting down items to go with our coffee and toast; the policeman lurks at a corner, ready to smash our best hat with his deadly locust.

These night workers form a little world to themselves. They grow to know each other, and there seems to be a sympathy among them on account of their peculiar life. The night policeman, and morning newspapermen, the cab drivers, the street cleaners (not referring to Houston now), the late street car drivers, the all-night restaurant men, the "rounders," the winerwurst men and the houseless "bums" come to know and greet one another each night on their several regular or aimless rounds. Only those who are called by business or curiosity to walk into this night world know of the strange sights it presents.

At 12 o'clock the night in the city may be said to begin. By that time the day toilers are at home, and the night shift is on. The street cars have ceased to run, and the last belated citizen, hurrying home from "the lodge" or the political caucus is, or should be, at home. Even the slow-moving couples who have been to the theater and partaken of oysters at the "cafe for ladies and gents," have bowed to the inevitable, and reluctantly turned homeward.

And now come forth things that flourish only in the shade, white-faced things with owl-like eyes who prowl in the night and greet the dawn with sullen faces and the sunlight with barred doors and darkened windows.

Here and there down the streets are lights and swinging doors and about are grouped a pale and calm-faced gentry with immaculate clothes and white flexible hands. They are soft-voiced and courteous, but their eyes are shifty and their tread light and cruel as a tiger's. They are gamblers, and they will "rob" you as politely and honestly as any stock broker or railroad manipulator in Christendom. Byron says:

"The devil's in the moon for mischief; not the longest day."

The twenty-first of June area half the mischief in a wicked way.

At about three hours on which the moonshine falls."

And still worse: a night when there is no moon to shine. Darkness is the great awakener of latent passions and the chief inciter to evil. When night comes, the drunkard doubles his cups; the roisterer's voice is unrestrained; even the staid and sober citizen, the bulwark of civil and social government, loses the checkrein of his demeanor and mingles in the relaxations of the social circle. The tongue of gallantry takes on new license, and even the brow and lip of innocence itself invite admiration with a bolder and a surer charm. What wonder, then, that lawlessness overreaches itself, and sin flaunts her flaming skirts in the very face of purity when darkness reigns.

In the all-night saloons there is always someone to be found. At little tables in the corners one can always see two or three worn and shady-looking customers, sitting silent, brooding over the wrongs the world has dealt them, or talking in low, querulous tones to each other of their troubles. A smart policeman, with shining buttons and important step, goes down the street twirling his club. He tries the doors carefully of the big stores, the wholesale houses and the jewelry stores to see if they are securely locked. He never makes a mistake and wastes his time trying the fastenings of the small shops.

A few gay young men stroll by occasionally, laughing loudly and scattering along and coarse jests. Down gloomy side streets steal a few dim figures, clinging to the shadows, walking with dragging, shuffling feet down the inclined plane of eternity. These are disreputable, but harmless, creatures, who have stolen out to buy cocaine and opium with which to dull the bite of misery's sharp tooth. In high windows dim lights burn, where anxious love watches by the bedside of suffering mortality through the long night watches, listening to the moans that it cannot hear, and wondering at the mysterious Great Plan that so hides its workings toward a beneficent end.

Down by the bayou throb the great arteries of the town, where all night long the puffing of steam and the click of pistol rods keep its life streams moving; where men move like demons in the red glow of furnace fires; where snoring engines creep in and out among miles of laden freight cars, and lanterns dance and circle amid a wilderness of tracks and shifting trains like big eccentric fireflies.

One can always see a few men perched on high stools at the all-night lunch counters. They are for the most part members of the night-working force, telegraph operators, night clerks, railroad men, messenger boys, street car conductors, reporters, cab drivers, printers and watchmen, who drop in to drink a cup of coffee or eat a sandwich.

The night clerk at the drug store sees much of the sadness and some of the badness of life. Customers stray into the store at all times of the night. The man with the disarranged tie and impatient manner as a frequent visitor. He has a doctor's prescription for some sick member of his family, and thinks it a greater blessing that he finds a store open and a doctor ready to compound his medicine than to be obliged to tug at a night bell for half an hour to wake up a sleepy clerk, as in times gone by.

Desperate-looking men sometimes come in to buy poison—generally morphine—and occasionally a hopeless, wretched woman with eyes big with hope deferred and an unyielding fate, will creep in and beg for something that will stay the pain forever. Often, in the darkest hour that they say comes before dawn, a man will enter in a hurry, buy a few pounds of prepared chalk and slip around the corner and drive away in a wagon containing two big tin cans full of pure, rich Jersey milk.

In the infirmaries and hospitals the nurses and genial-faced Sisters of Mercy bend over the beds of sufferers all through the dreary night, and bring to many an aching heart, as well as to pain-racked bodies, consolation and solace. The doctors, too, see much of the seamy side of night life. They are out by day and by night; the telephone rouses them from warm beds at all hours; whenever a knife flashes in a brawl, the doctor must be sent for; if a lady feels a nervous fluttering at the heart, out must come the carriage, and he must be sent for to feel her pulse in the middle of the night. Often he watches at the bedside of some stricken wife or child, while the husband is away roistering in evil company.

On a dry goods box sits a tramp, gently swinging his feet. It is 2 o'clock in the morning, and there he sits chewing a splinter with a frequent side glance toward the policeman on the next corner. What is he doing there? Noting.

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

If you lose your boy friend this summer because you insist upon him covering you up with sand every time you go to the beach together, don't tell us we didn't warn you. It's a cute little trick that goes very well after you've wigged your big toe for the sixth time. He'll probably throw sand in your hair in the end. Or, if you're so sure of your man, you'll find him a sand-covered perky boy friend. But not all on the same day. If you have all your admirers around you at once don't force them all to work at the job of keeping you buried. One a day and only one for each day. That's the law. And if you break it, you'll be grounded on a desert island all by yourself before the end of August. Just see if you aren't. DEAN.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

KING OF THE PLANETS.

Long ago the people of Greece and Rome used to speak of a god who was greatest of all—the Greeks called him Zeus, and the Romans called him Jupiter. The Roman name of that god has been given to the largest planet.

Jupiter never gets so close to the earth as Mars or Venus, but it is so large that it makes a fine sight in the sky, even at a distance of hundreds of millions of miles.

A boy or girl weighing 75 pounds on earth would have a weight of only 20 pounds on Mercury, but on Jupiter the scales would read almost 200 pounds! That is supposing spring scales were used. Another kind of scales, using balance weights would show the same number of pounds on every planet, because the pieces of metal would lose or gain in weight on different planets. The loss or gain would be the same for a man, woman or child. So if you go visiting on the planets and want to play with weights, be sure to take along spring scales.

Nine moons are known to go around Jupiter, and one or two more very small ones may be located in the course of time. Four of the moons are of large size, and you may see them with a pair of good field glasses. Jupiter is now in the evening sky. If you will look at it through a telescope or field-glasses, I'm sure you'll enjoy the sight. Look for a bright object in the southern sky, not long after sunset.

Two of the moons of Jupiter are a bit larger than the planet Mercury. The other two are about the size of the moon which goes around the earth.

One way to gain an idea of the size and weight of Jupiter is to compare it with the other planets. If we could have scales of large enough size, and put Jupiter on one side and all the other planets on the other side, Jupiter would make the scales dip.

If a human being could make a trip through the solar system, visiting every planet, he would find out many strange things. On the small planet Mercury, he would be able

Three Ex-Champions Lose in First Round of State Tourney

Sheriff Dave Harris, sold to Montreal in a surprise move by the Atlanta baseball club, had a busy day yesterday.

DAVE HARRIS.

He arrived in Atlanta from Birmingham in the morning. By noon he had gone around and applied for his winter job as a substitute policeman.

A little while later he lugged around $500 to the democratic executive offices and laid it on the line as the entry fee for your favorite mayor's campaign.

And a little later I got him.

"How come?"

"You can search me. I haven't another cent. That $500 was all. What are you running for?"

"What about this sale?"

"Oh, that? You can search me."

"Are you going to report to Montreal?"

"I leave a little after 7 o'clock."

"Any idea why? Any warning?"

"Not any. I thought I was going great. I was hitting better than .300 and was leading in stolen bases. And then the trainer walked in and said I'd back my bag because I was on the way to Montreal. So I checked up and sure enough, I was. So I packed up. And here I am. I guess I wasn't good enough."

"A lot of the fans will be sorry to see you leave."

"Well, I'm sorry to leave. I wanted to play for Atlanta. I was giving my best. But I'm gonna shuffle off to Montreal. I'll hustle for them, too."

The Sheriff began humming a song:

"When the war breaks out in Mexico, I'm gonna go to Montreal."

"I got a forty-second cousin up in Canada, I think I'll make a friendly call."

"I would like to be a hero in a suit of blue. But my insurance policy is now overdue. Sooooo, when the war breaks out in Mexico, I'm gonna go to Montreal."

"I'll be back in the fall," he said. "And don't park too long or rob any banks because I'm hoping to be on that police force again. And I'd dislike taking you in."

"Well, Sheriff, goodbye. And don't steal too many bases. There may be a Canadian law against it."

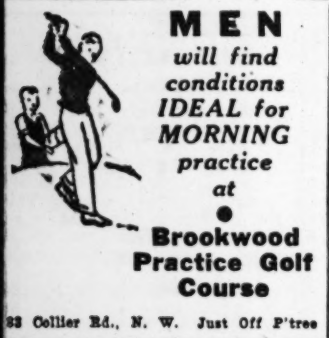

"Goodbye," he said, "and if you find out why I was sold to me know, will you?"

Southern Girl Is 'Baby' of Olympic Track Team

A year ago Coach Jess Neely, at Clemson, had the track coach give a few jumping lessons to a young girl from a farm at Seneca, S. C. Yesterday she sailed with the American team for Berlin, the "baby" of the American track and field team. She is shown above with two other girls. Left to right, Kathryn Kelly, high jumper, Seneca, S. C.; Marjorie Gestring, 13-year-old diver from California, and Elizabeth Ryan, New York, free-style swimmer. This is an Associated Press photo.

Kathryn Kelly 'Jumps' From Seneca to Berlin

By Ralph McGill.

The steamer Manhattan stood out to sea at noon yesterday carrying America's Olympic team to Berlin and the games with teams from all over the world.

Aboard was a young lady—the baby of the track team—Miss Kathryn Kelly—aged 16.

She is a farm girl from Seneca, S. C., and high jumping is her specialty.

And her story is just another one of the chapters proving truth to be stranger than fiction. Because the short story writer who wrote a story of the young farm girl who could jump and who went to the college coach and got a few lessons—and then made the Olympic team—would get his story returned very quickly indeed.

NEELY PLAYS PART. Jess Neely, captain of the 1922 Vanderbilt football team, former assistant to Wallace Wade at Alabama and for some years a successful head coach and director of athletics at Clemson, had a part in this success story.

A year ago a young high school coach brought a young lady—her from Seneca and said she showed promise of developing into a high jumper.

So Neely, always considerate, advised that the young lady be brought over a couple of times each week and be given a few lessons by the Clemson track coach.

She was. She took the lessons—

SALES WITH TEAM. And yesterday the girl from off the South Carolina farm sailed out of New York's great harbor with whistles blowing and flags flying and hands playing and cheers echoing out over the water as the great ship slid slowly away from the docks and turned her nose out to sea. Of all the people on the decks, whom do you suppose was the most excited?

Not knowing for sure, we could put down the name of this gallant young lady from Seneca and not be far from wrong.

From Seneca to Berlin is a pretty large jump.

But she made it.

Zadalis Is Western Medalist; Rainwater Has 147 To Qualify

OMAHA, Neb., July 15.—(AP)—Matt Zadalis, 26-year-old Lithuanian who operates a power lawnmower for the city of Omaha, worked over the Happy Hollow Club course today with his golf clubs to score a second dazzling 69 and win medalist honors for the 37th western title tournament with a 36-hole total of 138 strokes.

Rugged Matt, whose golf is played over Omaha's public courses except on tournament occasions, had his 69, put together by sub-par rounds of 35 and 34, early in the day. He had to wait around for hours, however, to see what Young Billy Cordingley, of Des Moines, Iowa, who set the first day standard with a great 68, could do, before collecting the trophy.

Cordingley lost control of his putter on three holes and had to settle for a 72 and a tie with Grable Duvall, of Kansas City, for third place at 140.

The day completed the failure of Walter Emery, of Oklahoma City, one of the three Walker Cup players in the tournament, to qualify. A stubborn putter which boosted him to 75 strokes yesterday, was even more unruly today and he took 42-36—78 for 153, far over the limit.

RAINWATER QUALIFIES.

OMAHA, Neb., July 15.—(AP)—Husky Crawford Rainwater gave Atlanta two places in the medal play warfare of the western amateur golf tournament today by adding a three-over-par 75 to his par 72 of Monday, to qualify with a 147 total.

The Atlanta youngster, who made his putter carry him through yesterday, had to get there today in spite of that instrument. Where they dropped yesterday, the best he could do today was come close on putts that would have meant birdies and a far more impressive score.

Rainwater will make his first start tomorrow at 18 holes against one of the hottest shots in the tournament, Jack Munger, of Dallas, Texas, as winner of the southern amateur title, who qualified with 70-72—142, two under par.

Charlie Yates, the defending champion, tackles Gene Milbourne, of Omaha, whose qualifying score was 146.

BLACK IS LOSER TO FRED MINNICH IN GREAT MATCH

Billy McWilliams and Johnny Oliver Among Those Eliminated.

By Roy White.

Georgia's former golf champions and favored stars found the charge of the younger brigade entirely too fast to overcome and were left behind Wednesday in the first round of the annual state tournament on the Capital City Country Club course.

And only Charlie Black Jr., the 1928 winner; L. R. Hunter and Bud Bicknell were left to carry on for the title for the veteran campaigners.

Dave Black, the 1934 winner and medalist Tuesday, was the first to fall before a withering attack of up-and-coming stars, losing to Dr. Fred Minnich on the 18th green. Johnny Oliver, of Valdosta, the 1929 winner, was beaten by Rosser Little, University of Georgia star, 3-2; Scott Hudson Jr., former Atlanta amateur winner, was eliminated by Johnny Owens, Atlanta's open champion last year, 1 up, and Billy McWilliams, the 1933 and 1934 winner, lost to John Ridley, young East Lake star, 3-1, in the major upsets of the day.

WIDE OPEN TOURNEY.

Wednesday's eliminations and the failure of Julius Hughes, runner up the past two years and outstanding favorite, to get into the championship flight, have left the boys in the locker room without speech regarding the outcome. And none will venture out on the limb to try and select a possible winner.

And to add to the blistering scoring pace Charlie Black Jr., who fought his way into the championship circle in the play-off late Tuesday afternoon, was forced to shoot sub-par figures for 15 holes to beat Jack Cook, young Ansley Park star, 4-3.

Jim Dudley, Athens, beat Dupont Kirven Jr., Columbus, 7-5; L. R. Hunter, East Lake, eliminated Ted Hayes, Black Rock, 5-4; Frank Mulherin, Augusta, beat Gene Gaillard, Ansley Park, 2-1; Forrest Fowler, Capital City, defeated Norman Elias, Inglewood, 4-3; Lane Fullenwider, Savannah, beat Dick Mulherin, Augusta, 4-3, and Kid Brown, Ansley Park, eliminated D. C. Black Jr., Capital City, 4-3, in the upper bracket of the championship division.

In the lower half, Jack Ezell, West End, beat C. M. Rowden, Druid Hills, 4-3; Bud Bicknell, Capital City, beat Bobby Dodd, Capital City, 2-1; Tommy Barnes, East Lake, beat Alton Irby Jr., Capital City, 2-1; Wade Hoyt, Rome, beat John Westmoreland, Capital City, 3-2, and Dr. Harry Rogers, Capital City, beat Tyre Jones, Canton.

Charlie Black Jr. had the best medal of the day, one under par for the 15 holes played. Forrest Fowler was one over par for 15 holes in eliminating Norman Elias and Ridley was three over par in beating McWilliams, one of the feature upsets of the day.

D. C. Black fought Kid Brown a great battle and missed an ace by three inches on the eighth hole. He won it with an eagle two as Brown had a birdie three. Brown took an early lead and lost it, although the Capital City player was very much in the battle all the way.

Dave Black turned Minnich, two down, but could not hold the lead and was squared, 1-1. Minnich, who was 17th as Black three-putted and played the 18th on even terms to win.

Frank Mulherin was one over par for the round in beating Gene Gaillard, Ansley Park star, 2-1.

Johnny Owens and Scott Hudson had a great battle, with Owens having a slight advantage all the way. Owens was one over par for the first nine with a seven on the par five 9th hole, and was two up at the turn. He weakened the back nine but rallied on the 16th green to win. Hudson's faulty putting let him down in defeat.

Play in the lower flights was just as hard and as close as that in the championship flight but went unnoticed as a majority of the gallery followed their favorites in the select circle.

The second round will open at 8:40 o'clock this morning, with the seventh flight moving off first. The championship flight will leave the first tee at 10 o'clock with Minnich and Dudley squaring off first.

The winning and losing players in each division will form flights of 16 each and carry on through Saturday's finals. The defeated eight in today's championship flight will form a consolation flight.

There will be some good matches in the second round today, with an Atlanta playing an out-of-town player in each match in the upper half of the championship flight.

Only one visitor, Wade Hoyt, of Rome, is left to battle Atlantans in the lower half.

Oscar Thompson, Capital City, won the longest match of the day when he defeated W. D. Tumin, West End, on the 20th green in the third division.

Shows, Wind

Damage Course.

A windstorm and heavy rain caused considerable damage to the Capital City golf course late Wednesday afternoon, but the dry fairways and greens absorbed the water as fast as it fell and the course will be in excellent playing condition today.

Most of the damage was caused by several trees being blown down. One tree was down across part of the first tee. Both the press and the starter's tent and the scoreboards were blown down, but not materially damaged.

BREAK O' DAY

add to the surprise of Tuesday when two of the ruling favorites failed in the qualifying round.

And when the smoke of Wednesday had cleared the Georgia state golf championship had a very new look in the title fight.

Dave Black, the medalist, was gone. Missing also were former Champions Billy McWilliams and Johnny Oliver.

The veterans of former tournaments had one lone defender left—Charley Black Jr. came through in a blistering match with young Jack Cook.

The others are, with one or two exceptions, those rated as underdogs in the morning lineup.

All of which makes it a wide open tournament.

Five cities are left in the competition. Atlanta has 11 of the 16.

Savannah has one, Lane Fulewider. Rome is represented by Wade Hoyt, not to be confused with Waite Hoyt, the old-time major league pitcher. Athens has two entries, Rosser Little, resident of Marietta, but registered from the Athens Country Club, and Jim Dudley. Augusta is left with Frank Mulherin to carry the banner. The odds favor Atlanta. But the course is causing one and considerable trouble. And the odds don't always count.

OVERCOAT WEATHER.

Mr. Fielding Wallace, the popular sportsman from Augusta and head of the Georgia Golf Association, arrived at the tournament yesterday afternoon.

"My, my," he said, "if this is a sample of the weather you are having here I shall wire my family to send my top coat along."

Mr. Wallace arrived in Atlanta from the drouth and heat sectors in Minnesota and Wisconsin. It was so hot there the glass all but melted out of windows and Atlanta's breezes were almost too cool for him.

Mr. Wallace is one of the officials of the National Golf Club at Augusta and already is hoping for good weather when the Masters' tournament is played next spring.

THE MOUSTACHE STORY.

Mr. Johnny Owens, who won a victory in the title flight yesterday, almost was barred when he appeared for the match. He didn't look like himself. He had shaved his moustache.

The late Mr. Alexander, who was wont to sigh because he had no more worlds to conquer, was the general who instituted shaving before going into combat. He found his enemies had a habit of grabbing his soldiers by their beards and doing them great bodily harm, such as chopping off their heads.

So he sent all his men into battle clean-shaved.

We asked Mr. Owens about this yesterday.

"No," he said, "I figured I couldn't play any worse without it, so I shaved."

He played very well indeed.

STEINBORN BOWS TO DICK RAINES PURDIN MEETS WAGNER FRIDAY

The mile-driver, with Dick Raines, his inventor, applying the pressure, proved too much for Milo Steinborn and his bear hug at the ball park Wednesday night, the burly Texan taking the match two falls to one over the German veteran before a small crowd, held down by the hysterical weather.

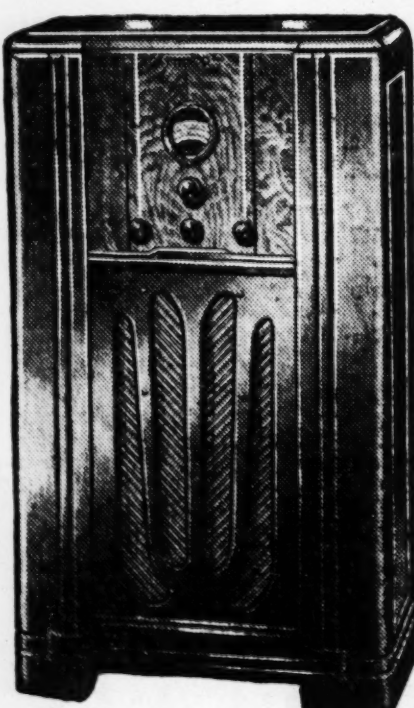

Otto Kuss, ex-football star at the University of Indiana, looked promising in the semi-final, pinning Jimmy Morris, of Dallas, Texas, in straight falls. The first fall came in six minutes. Kuss applying a flying scissors as Morris bounded off the ropes. The second fall also went to Kuss in five minutes on a foul.

Bill Lee, of Alabama, a substitute, beat Al Maynard, Boston, in 23 minutes of the opener on a foul.

Another show was announced for next Wednesday night.

TIMELY HITTING OF ATLANTA BRINGS VICTORY

Thomas Relieves Leonard in Ninth and Checks Pel Uprising.

By Jack Troy.

HEINMANN PARK, NEW ORLEANS, La., July 15.—Those Crackers used the New Orleans Pelicans as an antidote for their slump by taking the first of the eight-game series, 3 to 2, tonight.

The Crackers, it seemed, could not go on forever leaving runners stranded on the bases, although it was apparent to one and all that they were doing that very thing in the early innings and a great pitching performance by Emil (Dutch) Leonard was seemingly being wasted.

It has been mentioned before that when our noble lads, the Crackers, slump they slump all over. They cease firing in all departments. But that was all a thing of the past tonight. Let the dead past bury its dead.

ALL DUTCH.

The pitching of Dutch Leonard was all Dutch to the Pelicans, and at the same time the Crackers came through with timely hitting to win the old ball game.

But it was not without a struggle that Leonard retired the first two batters in the ninth. Then what should happen but that a seemingly harmless Texas leaguer escapes Nig Lipscomb. Lipscomb made a great try for the ball but couldn't quite get it. Then Morgan singled to left. Thus with the tying and winning runs on the base, Leonard retired and Bud Thomas came in to pitch to Bud Connolly.

The count worked around to two and two. Henrich waited on third and Morgan chafed at the bit on second.

Thomas took his time and finally fired a curve ball in there. Connolly pitched a high niblick shot in foul territory and Johnny Hill caught it for the final out.

RELIEF WORK.

The magnificent relief work by Leonard and Thomas saved the day, or rather, the night, and the Crackers popped out of their short slump just as Manager Moore figured they would.

The Pelicans, say the New Orleans sports writers, are the world's greatest antidote for a slump. Be that as it may, they went down swinging. The victory was the fourth in as many starts for Dutch Leonard, the lifesaver from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

His pitching was great, despite the ninth-inning trouble. Leonard came out of a tough spot in the eighth, after walking Eddie Morgan and allowing hits to Connolly and Helf, the latter's double scoring Morgan. Ed had a tough job in the ninth, who had relieved Bill Perrin in the seventh, and was purposely walked, filling the bases with none away. It was a tough spot, with the Crackers holding a lead of only 3 to 2.

But Irwin popped to Chatham and then Ernie Smith rolled weakly to Leonard, who forced Connolly at the plate. Richards completed the double play to Hooks.

SCATTERED HITS. The six hits Leonard allowed were scattered. He retired the first two of the game in the fourth. Irwin singled to left and Smith singled to center. Mailho fumbled the ball and Irwin went to third. He scored after the catch of Gleason's fly to center. This one run loomed mighty large in spite of Leonard's fine pitching. For it was not until the seventh that the Crackers were able to solve Perrin.

This bit of pleasant came about when Buster Chatham led off with a single and Hill and Hutcheson followed right with one-base walks. Chatham scored on Big Joe's drive to center. Leonard sacrificed. Connolly to Morgan. Mailho flied to Gleason and Hill scored after the catch. Brown walked and Hooks singled, scoring Hutcheson.

Perrin led the game and Drake forced Richards to pop to Morgan, ending the inning. Drake retired for Pinch Hitter Rose in the eighth and Bill Kardon. New Pelican recruit, finished the game.

JUSTICE! Justice finally triumphed or maybe it was the law of averages intervening. The Crackers were leaving on an average of one runner an inning stranded up to the seventh following their custom at Birmingham. This included leaving Mailho on third in the fifth after he had walked a triple to center.

Since Bud Thomas relieved tonight, chances are Bobby Durham and Ralph West will work in tomorrow night's double-header which will begin at 8:45 Atlanta time. Bill Thomas and Ralph

BILLY GILLESPIE AND BUFFINGTON IN NET FEATURE

City Tennis Meet Enters Third Round; Mrs. Hedekin Upset.

By Betty Mathis.

Rain did little damage to the city tennis tournament yesterday afternoon at the Biltmore Tennis Club, with only six matches postponed until today.

The only result resembling an upset came in the women's division as Evelyn Nathan, city champion of Savannah, defeated Mrs. Dave Hedekin, seeded fourth, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4.

First-round doubles proved to be a joke as all but one match was defaulted. That one was postponed because of the weather.

Today's matches are expected to furnish some very good tennis. The feature of the day will be between Don Buffington and Billy Gillespie for the right to enter the quarter-finals and to meet Malon Courts, probably.

Also interesting is the doubles match at 2 o'clock which brings together Bud Lindsay and Tom Tumlin and Marion Reese and Malon Manley. Special interest centers in this contest because these two teams are the finalists in the postponed public parks tournament.

Other matches which should furnish some excitement are those between Malcom Manley and Lieutenant Dave Hedekin, Dr. Kels Boland and Tom Tumlin, and Molly Williams, 300-pounder, and Malon Courts, defending champion.

Yesterday's results:

MEN'S SINGLES.

Molly Williams beat Tom Galloway, 6-3, 6-0; Lieutenant Dave Hedekin beat Bud Taylor, 6-4, 6-1; Rex Fleet beat Jeff Warren, 6-2, 6-1.
